BRILLIANT SCENES CLOSE CELEBRATION

Causeway and James Bay Centre of Animation, Gaiety and Merry-Making—Thousands Take Part in the Festival.

The King is crowned; long live the King. That is the cry resounding round the world to-day in lieu of the old historic note "the king is dead long live the king," combining the greeting of the coming with the mourning of the departing. And in the morning of that joyous shout Victoria exercised its lusty lungs until they cracked against the membrane, which critical time arrived with the breaking of the dawn.

Such a day it was, and such a night. Who, having taken but the meagre part in its celebration, can ever forget the gorgeous spectacle of thousands of people promenading the main thoroughfare with but one mind, and that the free, unburdened, and almost rapturous adoration of the coronation of their King.

Victoria, which has elsewhere earned a reputation for staid stolidity, emerged from whatever encumbrances of tradition it may have been enjoying a dignified dream in, and threw a challenge to the whole world at a joust of revelry.

Never in the history of the city, it is by insisting on carrying them off into the dining-room. His "captivating" ways seemed to win him as many smiles as buffets. Charming ladies clad in masks and dominoes promenade all over the building and gallant men of obscure identity fought for their hands with but one aim, to win the favor of the beautiful. This scene of jollity lasted until the considerate management turned down the lights by insidious degrees—and long after.

Outside the hotel on the Causeway was the scene of the greatest congestion that the city had experienced for a long time. There it was only possible to make progress by either walking or running. The center of the street or the center of the throng, the effect of the crowd was to flow instead of to be pushed. The effect of the crowd was to flow instead of to be pushed.

be called out at all, and then it was only for the benefit of some poor fellow who had over-estimated his alcoholic capacity. The constables on duty all along the line displayed a highly commendable spirit of tolerance. In fact, the efficient policing of points of congestion was a feature of the day.

Another feature which should not be overlooked, although it was probably less conspicuous than the others, was the presence of the firemen. In order to prevent and exuberant spirit from tampering with the alarms a man was stationed on guard at each of them. It was a most thoughtful action, as under such circumstances any slight mishap was apt to become magnified by the confusion which was sure to follow.

Considered from every point of view the carnival was one of which any city might well be proud. It was the greatest in the history of the city, and in order to beat it the aspirant will have to go some.

CRUSHED UNDER GOLD.

San Francisco, Cal., June 23.—Literally buried under nine million dollars in gold, Wadsworth S. Williams, an employee of the San Francisco mint, was so badly injured yesterday that his recovery is doubtful. The gold, in sacks, toppled in one of the mint vaults and overwhelmed Williams, who was wheeling a truck.

FOUND DEAD ON RAILWAY.

Calgary, June 23.—Early this morning the body of Thomas Stewart, assistant foreman of the Calgary Herald, was found on the Calgary-Edmonton tracks. The head had been completely severed and an arm torn off. His home was in England.

YATES TRAM LINE RECEIVES A KNOCK

THE PROPERTY OWNERS INTERVIEW COMPANY

Company Claims That Such a Line Would Not Pay in the Meantime

A tram service on Yates street? Oh dear, no. At least not in the meantime. These simple sentences would appear to dispose of the project which recently took definite form in the minds of some of the property owners on the street in question, and which, when taken to the ultimate tribunal, the B. C. Electric local manager, met with the reception already foreshadowed.

The claims of Yates street for a tram service were apparently discussed by a number of the property owners, and after deliberating and arriving at the conclusion that it would be a good thing if the company could be induced to extend their system in that direction, they approached the company's representative in the city, A. T. Goward, and laid the situation before him.

At the discussion with Mr. Goward the merits of the project were fully gone into. The enthusiasm of the deputations was met by the cold business sense of the manager, and as a result of the meeting Yates street dropped several points. Of course the centrifugal claim was at once abandoned, and the fact that in the near future the street will be an even more important one from the business point of view. In fact, it is understood that the suggestion was even made that the property-owners would pay a certain proportion—reputed to be in the neighborhood of 75 per cent—of the construction of the line. But in spite of this accumulation of evidence in support of the claims of Yates street the company sustained its attitude of scepticism as to the utility of such a line.

With the present line on Fort street only two blocks away, and running on parallel lines, Mr. Goward felt that an additional line on Yates street, tapping practically the same area, would be of little value to the company from the point of view of income. It would not pay for maintenance. Even now it is claimed that the particular section on the Fort street line between

"GOLDEN RULE" AT PRAIRIE CAPITAL

Winnipeg Decides to Adopt System Followed by Police of Cleveland

Winnipeg, June 23.—The police force will be entirely remodelled, and in every way possible, the police system of Cleveland will be copied, where a sort of golden rule system is in force. Drunks, when found roaming on the streets, will be taken to their homes by constables, excepting in extreme cases, when they will be taken to police headquarters there to receive a lecture when they have sobered up. Fines will only be imposed in the most extreme cases, for the whole system will be worked on the "golden rule," "Do unto others as you would be done by."

MESSAGE FROM KING GEORGE

Ottawa, June 23.—The following interchange of coronation messages took place yesterday between King George and Governor-General Earl Grey. Earl Grey's message follows:

"The hearts and prayers of all Canada are with Your Majesty to-day and always."

King George sent the following reply:

"I heartily appreciate the good wishes of my people in Canada on my Coronation Day."

HON. W. TEMPLEMAN VISITS COMOX-ATLIN

MINISTER ADDRESSES SEVERAL MEETINGS

Mining Activity in District—Labor Plentiful on Railway

Hon. W. Templeman, Minister of Mines, returned last evening from a visit to the northern portion of his constituency, Comox-Atlin. The trip occupied nearly three weeks and enabled the minister to see for himself the progress that is being made by what should properly be called "Central British Columbia." The people of Victoria and other southern points for years have been accustomed to regard Prince Rupert, Hazelton and other places in that latitude, as northern British Columbia, but a glance at the map at once removes that impression.

The district of Comox-Atlin is so vast that it is impossible for the minister to adequately cover it in one parliamentary vacation, or, for that matter, in several. In itself it is larger than most of the European kingdoms or the Canadian provinces and embraces the greater part of British Columbia's seven thousand miles of coast line. It is possible for the Minister of Mines to start on a jaunt from the most southerly point in his constituency and cover a thousand miles before he reaches the most northerly portion of it.

The purpose of Mr. Templeman's trip was to acquaint himself, first hand, with the needs of his district. Being deeply interested in the question of transportation and railway construction, he devoted considerable attention to the progress of the Grand Trunk Pacific from Prince Rupert eastward, accompanying President Hays and party over the first hundred miles. He track laid on the western section. He then proceeded by steamer to Hazelton. While in that locality he drove to the camp of Duncan Ross, of this city, who is busy attending to the many details involved in the performance of his subcontract.

The contractors have no complaint this year on the score of labor, a condition affording a marked contrast with that of last year. This is indeed fortunate so far as the work in British Columbia is concerned, but the contractors east of the Rockies are not so favorably situated. Last year these conditions were reversed. Labor on the British Columbia was relatively scarce, while on the prairies it was plentiful.

Hon. Mr. Templeman was particularly interested in the mining progress in the neighborhood of Hazelton. Several promising claims have been located near both Hazelton and Kitsoola, and mining men are confident that the development work now being carried on will have the most gratifying results. Anthracite coal is reported to have been discovered about thirty miles from Hazelton and a geologist of the Dominion Department of Mines, Mr. Malloch, is now on the ground making an examination. His report will be awaited with interest.

The minister addressed large meetings at Hazelton and Kitsoola, dealing principally with matters of local interest, such as mining development, railway construction and improvements in the telegraph and mail services. The settlers at both these places unmistakably showed their appreciation of what the Dominion government has done through the influence of the minister. In the different services and his assurance of other improvements to come were received with marked enthusiasm. Mr. Templeman also dealt with the political issues of the day at Hazelton, paying especial attention to reciprocity. He pointed out the tremendous advantage that would be derived by those parts of the province contiguous to the fishing grounds from a free market for fish in the United States and predicted that Prince Rupert would become one of the greatest fishing centres in the world. The growth of Prince Rupert in size and importance, of course, would have a marked effect upon those interior localities of which it was the seaport.

The minister also visited the town of Stewart at the head of Portland Canal and was the guest of the Citizens' Association at a luncheon given at the Empress hotel. Mr. Vaughan Rhys, president of the association, replied.

RECIPROCITY BILL NOT IN DANGER

SENATOR PENROSE REVIEWS SITUATION

Coalition of Insurgent and Regular Republicans is Not Feared

Washington, D. C., June 23.—Chairman Penrose of the senate committee on finance, said to-day that the Canadian bill would not fail by reason of the new coalition between Insurgent Republicans and Democrats which placed the regular Republicans in the minority. Speaking of that coalition, he said: "It is a rope of sand that will not hold."

The performance of the Insurgents and Democrats on Wednesday was effective for the time, but the differences between the two elements are so radical that the formation of a coalition to continue and if the purpose of it was to defeat reciprocity, it will fail.

With the tariff question dumped into the senate in connection with reciprocity, delay is to be expected, but in the end reciprocity will go through and it will then remain to be seen what will be done with the tariff bills now before the senate and those yet to be promoted.

The outlook in the senate is for a long and somewhat dreary period of debate, with no visible prospects of relief.

Under present conditions, with no party in control and no leadership recognized, no one can say in advance what is going to happen or whether anything may transpire out of the ordinary.

Winnipeg, June 23.—While thousands of Winnipeggers were enjoying coronation day at Winnipeg beach, the summer resort north of the city, two young men in bathing were carried beyond their depth and drowned. KING AND QUEEN DRIVE THROUGH LONDON STREETS

Long Route Lined by Thousands Who Enthusiastically Cheer Their Majesties—Procession on Larger Scale Than on Coronation Day.

London, June 23.—King George and Queen Mary to-day showed themselves to the masses as distinct from the more favored classes who were able to obtain access to the circumscribed area of yesterday's pageant. To-day's procession was on an even greater scale than that of the coronation. The route was more extended, including a circuit of some of the most populous districts of the capital. The crowds that looked on were correspondingly greater, and their Majesties were accompanied by a large escort.

The scenes along the route were to a great extent a reproduction of those of yesterday, with a much greater crowd of spectators. The procession began to form in the yard of Buckingham Palace and adjacent streets at 8 o'clock, and two hours later it was on its way. Between lines of cheering thousands, the royal party made stately progress from Buckingham Palace by way of Constitution Hill, overlooking the Palace Garden, were filled with uniformed officers from every part of the world who had come to London to honor Britain's King. Many of the officers were accompanied by their ladies.

On one stand were royal and other

lar. In the Strand there were rows of masts each bearing a red lion and underneath a velvet drapery with a lion rampant in the centre. Festoons of various colors ran from mast to mast. Down Fleet to Lugate Circus there were alternately Venetian masts with cross-bars and pillar masts, the Venetian masts surmounted by an angel or figure of fame, with the trumpet, while the pillar masts supported the British lion and unicorn. The masts were connected by festoons of greenery. Across the entrance to London bridge a triumphal arch had been erected.

South of the river every house, no matter how modest, had a piece of bunting flying. Except for the absence of the gold coach, the cavalcade was more brilliant than yesterday, and the stands along the route certainly made a bright appearance. Those on Constitution Hill, overlooking the Palace Garden, were filled with uniformed officers from every part of the world who had come to London to honor Britain's King. Many of the officers were accompanied by their ladies.

On one stand were royal and other

tution Hill, Piccadilly, Trafalgar Square, through the city, over London bridge, by Borough road and Westminster bridge, thus making a complete circuit.

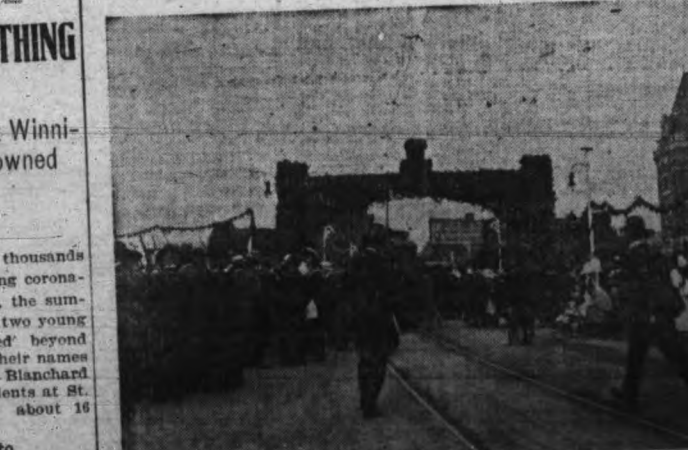

The pageant included four full squads of cavalry, representing all branches of the service, Guards, Dragoons, Hussars and Lancers, each accompanied by its own band and a section of horse artillery. These were followed by all the naval and military aides de camp on duty, the war office staff, deputations of the foreign office, the royal suite, the members of the royal family, and the foreign princes and the colonial escorts who immediately preceded the state carriage.

In the royal equipage with the King and Queen rode Field Marshal Kitchener and the bearer of the royal standard. The royal escort brought up the rear. Seats for many thousands had been occupied along this route, and the procession was indeed a royal one. Everywhere they received an uproarious welcome from the visitors in the hotels, from the stands of Piccadilly, Trafalgar Square and the Strand.

The decorations of yesterday remained in Piccadilly, and those in the other streets traversed were no less spectacular.

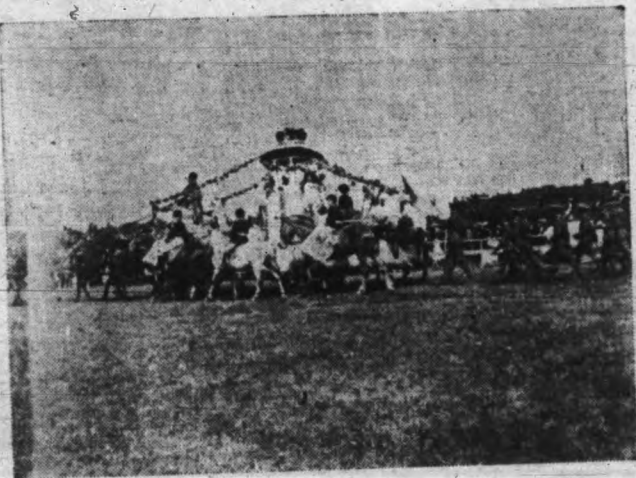

representatives of foreign states; on another were military officers attached to the suites of these representatives, and in the front rows of still another stand were naval officers from the international ships at Spithead. The naval visitors were attended by officers of the British navy and the naval attaches of the foreign missions and embassies. St. George's hospital, opposite Constitution Hill, and the residences around Hyde Park corner and Piccadilly were hidden by stands occupied by a crowd of uniformed nurses, side by side with men and women who had paid enormous prices for their seats. The windows of Stratton House and seats on the roof were occupied by guests of special United States Ambassador Hammond. These included the Duchess of Argyll, the special ambassador's staff in full uniform, members of the American embassy and many American women.

The early morning was none too pleasant, as far as the weather was concerned. The sky was overcast and occasional drizzling showers kept the spectators in doubt whether it would be necessary to raise their umbrellas. However, there were no heavy showers as in the early hours yesterday, and (Concluded on page 1.)

safe to say, has such a demonstration taken place before. The spirit of enthusiasm for the occasion overran itself in its stately effort to gain calmer waters, with the result that Victoria can to-day lay claim to a celebration with for spontaneity and dignity has seldom if ever been excelled. The scenes of harmless mirth-making which were enacted until a late hour, which were not duplicated for jollity and a spirit of camaraderie anywhere.

One thing is certain, though the rest may be lies, and that is that in no other building in the Empire was such a scene witnessed as was enacted in the Empress hotel last night. All the star-and-garter functionaries of the city were assembled there, and the scene was such as would gladden the eyes of any, but the sepulchral dole who dotes on solitude and isolation.

Loyalty, did anyone say? Why they sang the National Anthem fourteen times—and then refused to quit. Enthusiasm bubbled over like high-spirited wine, and wherever it spilt there grew up more of the same thing. A masquerading cook aspired to conduct the hotel orchestra with a walking stick. A manly Mephistopheles earned the universal love of the ladies.

Hindus, for perhaps the first time in their lives, got their rights, and if in a few instances they got the lefts as well it was all in the game and signified nothing more than the friendly relationship of all parties.

This motley crowd, embracing practically all the races that were ever heard of, extended from the parliament building to Yates street, and one had to march beyond either of these points to be relieved from the seething crowd.

One of the most attractive features of the carnival was the musical festival, which was held on the steps of the parliament buildings in the early part of the evening. Fully five hundred people took part in the choral work proper, but thousands of the spectators took up the inspiring refrains and waited them across the bay and over the town. Later on fireworks were set off from a float-stand in the bay and from Hospital Point, and the searchlight of the Princess Adelaide played on the whole gay scene.

Considering the magnitude of the spectacle and the desire to enthrall sufficiently on the part of the weaker vessels, the general conduct of the crowd was highly commendable. It was late in the evening before the patrol had to

PARADE WAS MOST BRILLIANT SIGHT

NEVER BEEN EXCELLED IN ANY PART OF DOMINION

Decorated Floats Were Beyond
All Praise in Conception
and Execution

The pageant of yesterday afternoon exceeded all expectations, and it is no idle statement to say that it has never been equalled in Canada, broad as that statement may seem. The ladies and gentlemen who spent hours and days, in designing and decorating the floats, the cars and automobiles deserve all the credit for the patriotic efforts, and the applause which greeted the procession at every point along the two miles of the route was eloquent proof that the citizens appreciated what had been done. The marshalling and management of the parade was perfect in every way, and the sentiment was unanimous that Victoria has covered itself with glory in this, as in every other detail of its observance of the day.

The streets along the advertised route were lined with people, and at Beacon Hill, whither from early in the afternoon thousands had gone by foot and car, the crowds were massed together waiting the arrival of the procession. There the Lieutenant-Governor was saluted, the awards made and general congratulations and remarks of praise and admiration showered upon the whole. The procession, which was marshalled by Chief of Police John M. Langley, and was followed in succession by the white swan and the beautiful small automobile, Mayor Morley and Ald. Bishop, O'Neil and Moresby occupied a carriage immediately behind; in the next carriage were Aldermen Peden, Humber, Langley and Ross, and they were followed by visiting representatives from Nanaimo, Vancouver and Prince Rupert; in carriages, the Pipers' band bringing up the rear of this portion of the procession. Other carriages followed the band, and were ahead of the veterans of the Fenian raid.

The cradle of liberty, an exceedingly handsome automobile float, headed the procession, which was marshalled by Chief of Police John M. Langley, and was followed in succession by the white swan and the beautiful small automobile, Mayor Morley and Ald. Bishop, O'Neil and Moresby occupied a carriage immediately behind; in the next carriage were Aldermen Peden, Humber, Langley and Ross, and they were followed by visiting representatives from Nanaimo, Vancouver and Prince Rupert; in carriages, the Pipers' band bringing up the rear of this portion of the procession. Other carriages followed the band, and were ahead of the veterans of the Fenian raid.

Automobile Prizes.
The first prize for decorated automobiles was given to the beautiful "mail," represented by Mrs. H. D. Helmcken's car, which was generally praised and voted as the most beautiful work of floral art in the whole parade. The snail was of green moss, outlined in the shell pattern in the furrows with flowers. The long-neck and feelers stretched out in front with the horns on the tips of the feelers. The "snail" was driven by two little girls seated in the body. The second prize went to Mr. Johnston's large shoe, in which he represented Old Mother Hubbard and had so many children he did not know what to do with them all. His shoe was outlined in frame work and the decorations were mostly in red and white.

W. J. Pender's "white swan" which waved its long neck and showed its red electric bulb eyes was generally considered a clever reproduction and the judges thought so also, for they awarded it third prize. The swan was constructed on frame work and was beautifully white, and in the machine were Carl and Mrs. Pender. Drawn by four grey horses in splendid trappings came the float "Britannia and Peace," followed by mounted men who have seen service. Those who were in this part of the parade, with their service and decorations, were:—B. H. Anderson, 2nd C. M. R., queen's medal and clasps; South African; J. Andrews, Unvot M. R., Natal Zulu Rebellion; J. Black, 20 C. F. A., king's African, long service; A. H. Baynton, 2nd C. M. R., queen's with clasps; A. W. Chandler, Royal Horse Artillery, queen's with clasps; W. Davis, R. N. W. M. P.; G. D. Down, Strathcona Horse, queen's with clasps; J. T. Fraser, Chicago Volunteer, Fenian Raid, 1868; W. G. Goodwin, South African police, king's and queen's; C. Hackney, Imperial Yeomanry, king's and queen's; J. Harris, Johannesburg M. R., queen's; E. B. Haisell, 30 C. M. R., queen's; V. Lowe, S. A. C., queen's; A. C. Major, Engineers, queen's; E. Murphy, Strathcona Horse, queen's; H. H. Nash, N. W. M. P.; Marquis Lorne star; J. C. Perry, 13th Hussars, king's and queen's; E. Schrapnel, 8th Royal Rifles, Fenian Raid; H. A. Treen, Victoria Rifles, Fenian Raid; W. M. Wilson, Ottawa Garrison Artillery, Fenian Raid; W. Ward, 1st Dragoon Guards, king's and queen's; J. Yates, S. A. C., queen's and king's coronation; and W. C. Warren, 1st R. C. R. and 2nd C. M. R., queen's and clasps.

Following the mounted men was Britannia dressed in white velvet and a cloth of gold cloak, on horseback, and then came the imperial crown with its warden and attendant pages and marshals on horseback.

The "Latchkeys of Empire," dressed in appropriate costumes, and representing the chief cities of the empire, were twenty ladies on horseback, who preceded the large allegorical float of "Britannia Rules the Waves," the designers of which had used "England" where "Britain" was plainly intended. This float was applauded for its patriotism as well as for its real beauty.

Standing beside Britannia was a study representation of John Bull. Marching in double file came the United Order of Workmen, thirty-four strong. Behind the Workmen rumbled the float, "Canadian Provinces," decked with wreaths and garlands of maple leaves, branches of fir and native grasses, and bearing eight fair ladies, seven representatives of the provinces of Canada, and the eighth, seated in state under a canopy and holding in her hand the Canadian flag, symbolic of the "Spirit of Canada."

The latter role was filled by Miss Helmcken, and the provinces by Miss Robertson, with fishing nets, British Columbia; Mrs. Sampson, Alberta; Mrs. Chas. E. Wilson with a sheaf of wheat, Saskatchewan; Miss Kilpatrick, with an Indian paddle, Quebec; Miss Paula Irving, New Brunswick; Miss Burrell, Manitoba; Miss Reid, with oak leaves, Prince Edward Island; Mrs. Tonnard, with maple leaves, Ontario, and Miss Page, with a basket of fishes, Nova Scotia. The ladies all carried shields bearing the coats-of-arms of their provinces they represented. The splendid vines which the idea suggested by the float was brought out reflects great credit upon Mrs. Sampson, who had charge.

"Britain's Supremacy Upon the Sea" was next in line, and was followed by nearly 300 Sons of England. In the foreground on the car stood two vikings, who, with their fierce, warlike countenances and dangerous looking battle axes, stirred the imagination of on-lookers. Pictures of sea-fights in the days when Britain was struggling to gain a foothold amongst the nations of the world.

Immediately behind knelt Neptune, paying homage to the all-conquering Britannia, and on one side were two sailors in the uniform of Nelson's time, and on the other, two blue-jackets of the present day. Last, but not least, two fair girls, with their baskets strapped across their shoulders and attired in dainty costumes of red and blue, who stood chatting gaily with the sailor laddies. The float was covered in red and white and adorned with garlands of roses.

An Indian princess, accompanied by all her attendants, many of whom were Hindu, garbed in the multi-colored and gorgeous trappings of India, next greeted the eye. This equipage presented a perfect riot of color, orange, yellow, green and white being contrasted very effectively. Miss Vera Mason took the part of the Indian princess. This was one of the most effective floats in the parade.

The Boy Scouts, first detachment, headed by its brass band, under Bandmaster V. G. Flowerlight, which rendered in a creditable style, several martial pieces, occupied the attention of the dense mass of sight-seers lined along the street for a moment, but interest was soon merged into wonderment when a huge car, draped in purple and white, upon which were seated on diminutive thrones seven small boys attired in the royal robes of state. The boys on the lower tier were representative of the dynasties, Norman, Lancastrian, Plantagenet, Yorkist, Tudor, Stuart and the last seated at the top, symbolic of the reigning house of Hanover. The whole scheme was entitled the "Evolution of the Crown." Clustering masses of yellow broom and wreaths of green oak leaves, with which the float was trimmed, set off very effectively the central colors, purple and white.

After this marched a second detachment of the Boy Scouts with their bugle band. The precision displayed by the boys in their marching and the promptness with which they obeyed every order showed with what enthusiasm they have taken to their work.

Perhaps the most unique and certainly one of the prettiest of the floats was that entitled "Cradle of Empire," which had been built up in the likeness of a forest scene, with towering fir trees and massive rocks, behind one of which crouched an immense black bear, rode four Indian outsiders, the parts being taken by Messrs. Scott, Desjardins, Wilkerson and Talbot, and a courier, Bruce Irving. That mystic personification of all the Dominion's hopes and ambitions, the "Spirit of Canada," already symbolized in a previous float, was again embodied, this time by Mrs. Valentine, and ranged about her were character representations of General Wolfe, Mr. Crease, a colonial governor, R. Wymor, Champlain, Mr. Scott, an Ursuline nun, Thomas, an Indian maid, Miss McDowell, and La Salle, Mr. Musgrave.

Following this came a third brigade of the Boy Scouts.

Cradle of Empire.
Perhaps one of the most beautifully executed and certainly one of the most picturesque floats in the procession was that designated "Cradle of Empire." The cradle consisted of floral combinations of the exquisite blend, arranged in the form of a cot, and the imperialists were represented by a coterie of daintily dressed girls whose golden curls hung about their willow necks and kissed their cheeks.

As to present a color scheme of exquisite beauty. The bay of juvenile belles who occupied the centre of the scene and peeped out upon the spectators from unexpected and ingenious corners, added the necessary touch of animation to the whole, and made it one of lasting charm.

Of a more prosaic though not less interesting character were the floats representing the Independent Order of Old Fellows, and the Ladies' Musical Society. The former was, of course, attractive on account of its source and inspiration alone, and the latter, though of a more highly ornate description, did not aspire to the altitude of some of its predecessors, but very artistically symbolized the art of music.

Another scenic effort that called forth the highest praises of the spectators was the float of the Sisters of St. Ann, entitled "The Call of the West." In the decorative arrangements the spirit of the idea was cleverly interpreted, and the principals characterizing the personnel of the party were costumed in a manner appropriate to the occasion. The dressing of the float was artistically crude, it such a paradoxical combination may be used to express a natural crudity artistically executed in the depicting of the west.

Of a somewhat similar nature was the float of the Pioneers and Native Sons' Society, which bore the descriptive title of "Back Mules and Miners' Outfit." It breathed the same spirit of independence and the free air of heaven as characterized its immediate leader, and was well up to its standard of excellence also. The same society was represented by a second float entitled the "Miner's Camp Life," a typical example of the manner in which the miners of this western country live their lives with the earth as their warehouse and the sky their roof.

This section of the parade was tailed by the "Floral Crown" of the Horticultural Society. And it was a floral crown of particular note. The scheme of ornamentation was apparently carefully thought out, and the execution certainly played a great second to the design. Rising high above most of the others near it the crown was effected by a clever arrangement of trimmings and paddings, which from the exterior at least was a perfect dream of beauty. The diversified colors of the flowers used lent a live aspect of riches to the whole representation, and left an impression of painstaking enthusiasm rewarded with the highest tributes of success.

One of the most imposing arrays in the pageant was that of the Ancient Order of Foresters, who turned out to the number of about 400, including the juvenile branch of the order. Following the members came a float of the order, which was among the best in the pageant. Reclining under the spreading branches of an oak tree was the famous old ranger of Sherwood forest, with a few of his merry men in Lincoln green. Each man carried a long yellow bow. At one side sat Jolly Friar Tuck with his bottle before him. A target leant against the tree and suspended from a tripod was an iron pot.

Next came a float representing the Ladies of the Maccabees. The prevailing color was white. Surmounting the arch, under which stood two ladies with swords was a golden hive, the emblem of the society. From the front of the arch projected two silken Union Jacks; from the rear two flags of the order. The Hives represented were Nanaimo, Victoria, Baxter and Queen Alexandra.

Following the L. O. T. M. float was that of the J. B. A. A. on which were men prominent in each line of the association's activities, with a brilliant array of silver trophies won by them and their comrades. Some of the boys held aloft oars, others carried punching bags and footballs. The whole made a most effective display, and one that claimed a generous share of praise.

The Daughters of Pitt float came next, with an array of pretty nurses from the Jubilee hospital, under an arched trelliswork wreathed in the colors of the society, red and white. Preceding their float rode the "Red-cross Knight" clad in a snowy white mantle and bearing in his hand a drawn sword. On the sides of the car was the inscription, "We Plead for a New Hospital."

The Orangemen had a guard of Black Knights escorting their car, which was throne adorned with orange and purple bays. Before the throne were the regalia and emblem of the order, the Crown and Scripture placed on the Holy Bible. After the car marched the members in uniform.

The Salvation Army band made a splendid showing and played well. The Victoria Horticultural society had a car which for careful work and simple beauty was an equal to any in the pageant. All about it were broom and flowers cleverly and artistically worked into a base of moss. The name of the society was worked in flowers on the sides. Within the car were growing palms, and above the whole was a crown of flowers.

Then, headed by the city band, marched forty-six of Victoria's army of firefighters, the whole force with the exception of one company which remained ready in case of a sudden call. In the centre of the front rank, beside his father marched little Tom Davis, son of the chief, a fine, manly little chap in complete uniform, boots and all. He was included in the cheers which greeted the brigade. Twelve engines followed the members of the brigade, the three new motors in the lead. This was the first occasion in many years that Victoria's whole equipment has been seen at once—and never before such an equipment.

Nearly the last figure in the procession, but by no means the least in the lead, and effect, was the pagoda-like chariot decorated by the Wong Wah Chinese society. The car bore loyal inscriptions on the outside.

WASTE OF TIME

We believe ourselves to be quite correct respecting the itinerary of Mr. R.
L. Borden throughout the Middle West
in characterizing it as a waste of time.
It has been announced that eleven speaking places have been added to the number originally decided upon in order to make the tour more extensive and cover a wider field. It is now known that the avowed object of Mr.
Borden in meeting the electors of the West is to convert them, if possible, to his views respecting dangers of reciprocity to the unity of the Empire. It is but beginning to be known that the western people are meeting Mr. Borden with the avowed object of converting
him to the favorable view of the reciprocity pact. Both parties have emphatically declared their unchangeable attitude upon the single question in the arena of discussion, and it must be with an increasing degree of sad heartedness
and despair on the part of the opposition leader that he will complete his dates while the Conservatives of the Northwest must experience an ever-increasing degree of disappointment, if not disgust, with their leader. The irreconcilable attitude of the variant parties is apparent. It is not a Conservative policy as against a Liberal policy
in the prairie provinces, but Mr.
Borden against the whole country, Conservative and Liberal alike. It is not, shall we have reciprocity or not. The farmers of the wheat fields and granaries of Canada have made up their minds on that question. It is, what shall we do with Mr. Borden?

Probably there never was a combination of circumstances so peculiar and so difficult to be faced in the experience of any political party leader here-before in Canada. Much capital has been made by some of the Conservative papers in the East and by Tory papers
in England about the irreconcilability of East and West. In some instances the geographical features of Canada
have been cited as if to prove that nature had intended that East and West
should be divided, and the Great Lakes
have been made the dividing lines. No single man has ever essayed to do so much to separate the East from the West and demonstrate a community of conflicting interests as Mr. Borden is doing on his present mission. No man has shown more clearly what must be the basis of such division and contradiction of interests as the leader of the opposition is doing. No man has ever given Canada to understand quite so clearly that the unalterable policy of the Conservative party is a policy of high tariffs and consequent disabilities

shouldered alike upon the producer of natural commodities and the consumer of manufactured articles. He, as well as the consumer of natural products, exalted in price by artificial conditions of commerce made possible only by high tariffs, is the helpless sufferer at the points in the line where the impact is felt.

There is no doubt that the Conservatives in the Middle West—men who hold to that traditional policy—have hoped
all along to be able to convince Mr.
Borden that there are cases and conditions under which a protective policy is a mistake. It took the high tariff walls to show the producers of the enormous harvests of the prairies that they were a shut-in people. They did not so thoroughly realize the iniquities of the high tariff principle while they complacently
paid a high price for protected manufactures; it was when they found they were shut out of a market by a similarly high tariff that the evils of the whole protective system forced themselves
upon their conviction. Being reasonable men, they hoped that Mr. Borden would be equally amenable to reason. They have been doomed to disappointment.
Mr. Borden cannot change his political views upon the subject because they are views which he must hold in order to maintain the tottering support of the only interests in Canada which need such a policy. Mr. Borden has only one base of supplies, and he must speak their language if he is to secure their support. He is a spokesman who has lost his political entity in a party
service, and he has committed himself too deeply ever to be able, despite his genial personality and many attractive traits of character, to recover himself.

"There is a singular Swan song of political martyrdom in the music of Mr.
Borden's words. He says to the electors:
"Gentlemen, if you were to offer me
to-morrow the crown of Canada's premiership with the condition that I accept reciprocity I should not hesitate
the thousandth part of a second to decline it." This is very heroic, but it is not a very convincing reason why the people of Canada should reject reciprocity. It does not go very far to convince the electors that a reasonable reciprocify in natural products will do them any harm. We can conceive that the electors of Canada will not have a very difficult matter to decide if they are thus confronted with the necessity of sacrificing Mr. Borden or sacrificing their own interests. And yet this is the gravamen of Mr. Borden's argument:
"Gentlemen, if you accept reciprocity
you kill me." The answer of the Northwest seems to be already pretty well
cut and dried and it will be: "Dear Mr.
Borden, while you never have done anything for which we particularly esteem
you as a political leader, while it is even true that you never did anybody
very much harm and we do not like to be compelled to look at your crushed
and mangled remains, there is one only way by which you can save yourself—
move out of the path of the road roller."
Mr. Borden has not succeeded in attracting their attention to a couple of red herrings that he has in hand. They are not much inclined to be scared
when he says "the policy of the government may mean control of terminal elevators in fifty years." They know that if it should appear to be a wise thing
and good for the country to have elevators controlled by the government that will be attended to. The matter of railway domination was attended to
by the present government in a wise way which worked harm to no one and which achieved incalculable good for the whole of the Dominion. What is to be done in the matter of government control of public or semi-public utilities
will be enacted as rapidly as the country is ripe for it, and the people know that the whole land is over ripe for reciprocity. They will not exchange a certainty for an uncertainty, and they will continue to repose their confidence in the first government that has really reckoned the rights of the people as one of the responsibilities of office.

Mr. Borden is, therefore, wasting time.

FIFTEENTH ANNIVERSARY

To-day marks the fifteenth anniversary of the modern era of Liberal government in Canada, it being June 23, 1896, when the Conservative party was hurled from power. The government which has been uninterruptedly led by Sir Wilfrid Laurier has numbered among its executive officers some of the ablest reformers Canada has produced. The executive has been both cautious and progressive in every matter affecting the welfare of the people of Canada as a whole. During this period Canada has, because of a variety of transpiring events, reached the foremost place among His Majesty's overseas dominions. There can be no doubt that her pre-eminent place will be maintained and enhanced. The signs of the times point to continued prosperity in material affairs and a benediction of peace throughout the Empire
which must react favorably upon the Dominion.

NOTING IN LOYALTY

The phrase aptly describes the celebration of yesterday, provided always that it is not to be understood in its vulgar sense. The whole programme,
both in conception and in execution,
reflects the greatest credit upon those who devised it and those who rendered co-operation in carrying it out. The climatic periods—morning, afternoon and night—were happy thoughts. With youth in the forenoon, the general public and the participants in the affair
in the afternoon, with everybody at night, it made a tout ensemble that will be remembered for a long time.

While everything was all the time
spectacular, there was a basic principle of loyalty in everything, and it is safe
to say that those who took the tremendous significance of the event which was celebrated. When it is reflected that the incidents which made a fête in Victoria were but a single example of what was taking place in thousands of similar places in the Empire, with the crowning glory of the whole in the centre of Empire itself,
the suggestiveness baffles description.

There is another thought which lingers
when it is understood that the visitors from off Vancouver Island were not a multitude. Vancouver had its own celebration, and her people
were mostly loyal to their own city.
There were but few annexationists
here from Sound cities to join in the festivities of a coronation occasion.
Yet there were great crowds—the greatest ever seen gathered in Victoria.
The suggestion is simply, but magnificently, what Vancouver Island can do without adding to her celebrants those who come across the straits.

Air-sickness is the coming popular indisposition. For some years it will be quite an exclusive affection.

The morning paper says whatever fate the reciprocity pact meets in the senate it will be so altered as to show that "Canada was in haste to talk about reciprocity." And still it must be remembered that Sir John A. Macdonald and Sir John S. D. Thompson would have negotiated reciprocity 20 years ago if they had been able to effect it.

The Ottawa Citizen says: "From Texas comes a story of a flyless city,
a municipality which by scrupulous cleanliness has rid itself entirely of the pest. Hubbard City is the place that boasts this distinction, and it is related that the mayor last year offered $1,000 for every fly found within the city limits, but there were no takers." Oh me! Oh my!

The New York Herald devotes a whole page to the part Americans played in the Coronation of King George. What a change has come over the spirit of our neighbors within a very few years! The average citizen of the United States now appears to take more interest in the crowning of a British King than in the inauguration of a president.

The only three constituencies in which Mr. R. L. Borden spoke in Nova Scotia in the last elections went overwhelmingly Liberal. Might it be inferred that the opposition leader is simply making Liberal votes on his tour of the prairie provinces? He had a fighting chance in the province
where he is well known and to which he belongs, but in the Middle West the odds are hopelessly against him.

That Victoria County man whose sanity is questioned because he thinks Col. Sam Hughes to be premier of Canada, might get off all right if he would mitigate his dogma to the belief that his hero is leader of the Opposition,
thinks the London Advertiser.
That multifarious opposition has a multitude of leadership, one person drawing
the pay, another contributing the strut
and generally acting as cheering
leader at a college game, another serving as mascot. Mr. Foster is not the mascot, Col. Hughes does not draw the pay.

The morning paper can always extract comfort from a cucumber and we should not be surprised to find it getting blood out of a post sometime.
It says the Liberal papers are not making much noise about the Nova Scotia elections being fought out on the reciprocity issue. No, dear Gaston, they are not. With Liberals the reciprocity pact is a foregone conclusion.
If the Conservatives wanted Nova Scotia fought on that issue why did they not introduce it into the campaign?

The legislature of British Columbia passed a resolution opposing reciprocity as one of its nearly last acts before prorogation. The legislature of Saskatchewan passed a resolution in favor of reciprocity unanimously about the same time. When it is considered that the resolution of the local house
was a strictly "Simon says thumbs up"
vote as a party expression and that the legislature of Saskatchewan is about evenly divided between Conservatives and Liberals the conviction is given home that the latter was a common sense vote. Incidentally it may be remarked that common sense wins in the end.

Morning dispatches from Washington say that among the possibilities
in the reciprocity issue is one that such changes will be made in the bill
as to render it obnoxious to Canada.
And just to think of it on the eve of the vote too. Those mean Americans!
The news agent was derelict in imagination. He should know that here in Canada it is perfectly understood
among the Conservatives that Canada
takes her fiscal policy from Washington. Nothing that could be done at Washington could be obnoxious to Canada. Note—The above is meant to be sarcastic.

It is quite in keeping with the fight
the interests have put up in Canada
against the passing of the reciprocity treaty, to be told now that there is in process of formation a merger of the principal bakeries in the country. The price of bread in Canada at present is very high compared with that in England. The English baker can sell a two-pound loaf made from Manitoba hard for about four and a quarter cents. We pay almost twice that much for a loaf weighing a half-pound less. The people are ready to take less than half the loaf so that local industries may be encouraged and national ones protected.—St. John Telegraph.

EVIDENCE OF WIFE IN BIGAMY CHARGE

A Delay in the Coronation
Parade—Athletic Chinese
Ejects Non-Paying Diner

Having heard the evidence of Carrie Clausen Murrah and witnesses at her marriage with Robert Murrah, and the evidence of Margaret Mary Murrah, nee McNeill, whom he subsequently married at Christ Church cathedral,
Victoria, and her witnesses, the charge of bigamy against Robert Murrah was adjudged this morning in the police court for the purpose of calling the sheriff and Very Rev. Dean Doull, who will testify to-morrow regarding the second ceremony.

Carrie Clausen Murrah, who with Lulu Clausen and Henry Clausen, were brought from Seattle as witnesses,
said she married the accused at her mother's home, 3892 Ashwood avenue,
Seattle, and produced her marriage certificate. She and Murrah had lived there two months when they had removed into Seattle and lived together
till Murrah came to Victoria to play baseball. She had taken no proceedings for a divorce but heard Murrah
had commenced an action which had never, as far as she knew, been completed. In fact she had heard it had not gone to the court. She said she did not desire to obtain a divorce from him
but might have written him that he could get one if he saw some one he liked better than he liked her. The last time Murrah had written to her
he had asked for $5.

The witnesses at the first ceremony
were heard also.
Margaret Mary McNeill, with whom Murrah went through the form of marriage at Christ Church cathedral on April 17 last, said her mother and Thomas Neil were present then. Dean

Doull performed the ceremony. She understood that accused had been divorced from his first wife. She was not quite eighteen years of age when she went through the ceremony and had known Murrah about a year. After her marriage nearly everyone she met on the street told her Murrah had a wife at Seattle, and, obtaining the address, she telegraphed to Carrie Clausen Murrah and received an affirmative reply to her enquiry whether she was Murrah's wife. She then laid an information against him and he was arrested at her mother's home on Mason street, where they were living.
Murrah told her he had written to his lawyer in Seattle to obtain his divorce papers.

A delay was caused to the coronation parade yesterday afternoon by an interruption in the form of a riot and two policemen at Johnson street and Government street corner. John Brooks and E. Jarvis were in court this morning as a result to answer a charge of obstructing the police.

Mounted Constable Wright and Constable Baxter said accused had tried to drive through the procession when they stopped him, and endeavored to head his horse the other way.

A witness named Robert Ledingham
told the court that the mounted constable lost his head and there would have been no trouble had the constable behaved himself. Another constable came up, he said, and dragged the accused Brooks from the rig and beat him over the head with the butt of a whip and also kicked him. Witness said it was the most foolish thing he ever saw, and for a few moments he was afraid there would be a riot. It looked to him like a case of temporary insanity on the part of the police, he said.

The magistrate dismissed the charge.

Constable Colin McDonnell told how he had seen Hong Yow, a Chinese,
throw Thomas Downey out of the Rainer restaurant, with the result that Downey's head was severely cut in contact with the sidewalk.

Constable Edens corroborated, and Hong Yow complained Downey would not pay for his food or leave the place, so he threw the man out. Downey was unable to recollect how he was put out of the restaurant, but had a vision of three Chinese.

Hong Yow interjected that he had done the whole business alone, and the magistrate, having heard his story,
dismissed the case.

Max Benson, charged with theft of an overcoat and a hat from the Vi-toria hotel, said he was willing to plead guilty to being drunk and was remanded until to-morrow.

Hedley Bailey, charged with threatening his wife with a razor, said he was drunk and had a row with his wife. They had been married twenty years.

The magistrate remanded accused till after court and promised to have a talk with him.

PASSING SHOW

Empress-Grand Theatre.
See the show and take a rest and then get in the throng again, so the Empress-Grand was full at every performance yesterday and the merriest found there was an echo of the great gaiety on the outside.

George Rolland was merry-maker number one with "Hogan in Society," that satirical classic in American slang, and he and his performers, Dick Flower, Mae Mann and Leslie Paul, filled the theatre with ringing laughter. No doubt to-night there will be another such reception tendered the Oivott Troubadours as that they received last night for their excellent Italian and popular musical selections on the violin and the guitar.

An immense favorite this week is Josephine Davis, whose harem skirt and general good looks are responsible for her popularity. Josie Meers makes a very successful bid for applause in opening the show with a tight-wire act, and Sandberg and Lee offer a hedge-podge of dance and song. Here Chitty is the man behind the Grandiose gun and his firing this week is all on the laugh order.

Majestic Theatre.
"A Tragedy in Toyland" is an interesting film. The actors are a child's toys except in the opening and closing scenes. It shows a battle with toy soldiers, a love affair which incites a duel, etc. To do this required 122,000 separate movements and 18,000 separate exposures. A photographer devoted his entire time for three months to the work. The film is a success. "The Power of a Mother's Love." "Across the Plains" shows the thrilling adventure of a gold seeker's daughter. "The Peace Offering," comedy drama, presents a domestic mix-up in which a woman is arrested for wearing her own coat.

CHEVALIER PLAYS BEFORE POOR HOUSE

Famous English Delineator Delights Those Present With His Inimitable Art

The one thing which suffered last night when Victoria was in her most roystering mood was appreciation of the art of Albert Chevalier, the English delineator, who was appearing for the first time in the opera house of the city. Knowing the occasion which led to the niggardly patronage of his performance, and also being sure in the faith of this work, Chevalier will probably overlook the seeming slight and reserve his opinion of the judgment and enthusiasm of Victoria theatre-goers until Saturday, when he is billed for another performance.

For the most part, those who were present seemed to be old theatrical acquaintances of the actor-singer, for the announcement of each of the historic character duties evoked a burst of applause, which was, however, like the bubble of the storm compared with the ovation which greeted the conclusion of each individual effort. And to those who were present extreme thanks is due for the room they left, which was in great request by the expansive and almost levitating effects of the ebullient and cashinatory touches of the performer upon his audience.

Albert Chevalier is an artist. His adoption of the coster character as the medium through which to express his personality and his art is almost unique in its seeming latitude, yet the coster with Chevalier thinks and breathes, and incidentally sings, is as potent a subject for dramatic usage as any other being under the sun. The coster is the one by-product which makes the London slum bearable, and if Chevalier enhances the point and makes him lovable that is a privilege which none but the historian will challenge. Arrayed in modest adaptations of the coster garb Chevalier is no longer an impersonator; he is the real thing. He talks more than he sings, and when his expressive face is in operation conveying asides which the words have not the art to do, he develops eminence.

To come upon the stage and sing a silly old song about "My Old Dutch" and get off with it must be a triumph of deceit, but to infuse such a breadth of meaning into it, and to give it the artless touch of art which quickens it into kindred life is a triumph of mind which very few can hope to emulate. Who could hear Chevalier sing "The Future Mrs. Hawkins" in his quaint tones of potted melody without being positively charmed at so much ingenuously being drafted into a drab proposal.

Sympathy is the keynote of understanding, and it is the application of this quality in undiluted form to the character he portrays which makes Chevalier the artist he is. He does not attempt to play the coster as he is or as we all know he is; he attempts to play him as Hazlitt wanted nature pictures to be painted, as it ought to be even if it never has been so before. "Our Little Nipper," a delightful song sketch which to its purport, and "A Fallen Star," a ludicrously human incident, displayed in the most forcible manner the wonderful versatility of the actor. While his rendering of the latter did not unlock the fount of tears it suggested in unmistakable terms a breadth of sensation that embraced both tears and laughter. Among the other numbers were "Right As Nineteen," "Knocked 'em in the Old Kent Road," "Wot vur do'e luv-ol" and "The Veteran."

Mr. Chevalier was ably assisted by Edna Blanche Showalter, a distinguished soprano of exquisite clarity and breadth of range, and Myron W. Whitney, the popular American baritone. To-night the company go to Nanaimo, returning to close the engagement here to-morrow evening.

NANAIMO UNITED ARE FOOTBALL CHAMPIONS

Downed Ladysmith Yesterday
by Four Goals to Two—
Play Was Strenuous

Nanaimo, B. C., June 23.—Nanaimo United won the football championship of British Columbia by defeating Ladysmith on the local ground before 2,000 spectators, yesterday afternoon by four goals to two.

Nanaimo had all the best of the game, keeping up a continuous bombardment on the visitors' goal, and a score of six to two would have better represented the day's play. Ladysmith scored within two minutes from the commencement of the game owing to a misunderstanding of the local backs, but after this initial success were never in the game.

Waddle ended the score 20 minutes later and Gibson put Nanaimo ahead ten minutes from half time with a hard drive which Upton found it impossible to save. Time and again the ball hit the Ladysmith goal posts and on occasions missed going into the net by inches.

Although assisted by the wind the visitors' showing did not improve during the second half and all hopes of their winning went glimmering when, after fifteen minutes of the second half had been played the Ladysmith goal-keeper was compelled to leave the field owing to injuries. Adams headed Nanaimo's third goal into the net, and the same player scored the fourth goal off a penalty kick. Handicapped by the loss of a man, Ladysmith kept continuously on the defensive, were seldom dangerous, but were enabled to score a second goal from a penalty. McGuire taking the kick. Play was of a strenuous order throughout. Referee Ovington being kept busy keeping down dirty play. Players on both sides, playing with determination brooked no opposition. The teams were:

VANCOUVER WRESTLER WON.

Stettler, Alta, June 23.—On Wednesday night the opera house was crowded to witness a wrestling match between Otto Wakelof, champion of Alberta and Saskatchewan, and Carl Rogers, Bayley, T. Hynds, McAdam, O'Connell, McGuire, Dunsmore, Muir and Sanderson.

Peterson, of Vancouver, catch-as-catch-can, for a purse of one hundred dollars. Peterson was the heavier by thirteen pounds but had a strong and clever opponent. The first and only bout lasted 100 minutes, when Peterson threw Wakelof off the mat, but head striking a chair at the ring-side, Wakelof was unable to resume and the umpire awarded the match to Peterson.

ISLANDERS TALLY SIX RUNS IN FIRST

Locals Hit Erickson All Over
Lot in First Innings—Won
by 9 to 6

Not at all discouraged by their hard luck in the morning the Islanders waded right into Erickson's benders in the first inning of yesterday afternoon's game and when they stopped clouting the ball had tallied six runs. With two runs already in, three men on the paths and two out, Dashwood walked to the plate, deliberately spat on his hands, and lifted the sphere over the fence with the nonchalance of a Swain. Although Victoria did not maintain their lead, it was too great for the Beavers to overcome, and the score ended 9 to 6 in favor of the home team.

Thomas was on the slab for the locals, and he, after pitching good ball for two innings, distributed four hits, a base on balls and a hit-by-ball amongst the Beavers, all of which combined with McMurdy's error on first gave Vancouver five runs. He was replaced by Belford, who retired the two ambitious visitors without further scoring.

Erickson, the heavyweight slogger from the Terminal City, was also lifted in the third, after allowing the Islanders one in the second and another in the third. With the change of pitchers and, on Vancouver's line-up a complete change of battery, Lewis taking Shea's place behind the bat, the game settled down into something more like an exhibition of ball playing. The Beavers gathered one in the eighth on wild pitching, and the Islanders added one to their score in the fifth, Dashwood getting a pass and coming in on Belford's two-bagger.

The features of the game were Dashwood's batting and Kellar's catch of a home line drive off Gervais' bat. In the sixth McMurdy put his finger out and Ward took his place on the initial sack.

HOME RUN WINS GAME.
A home run by Shea in the second inning of the game at Seattle yesterday allowed four men to cross the pan and gave the Giants a handsome lead, which, although they hit safely quite frequently, the Indians were unable to overcome. Bonner's wildness, which gave the home team another run, also weakened Spokane's chances.

HILLS DEFEAT CLOVERS.
Amateur Ball at Royal Athletic Between Victoria and Vancouver Teams.

The Beacon Hills adorned their camp with another scalp last evening, when they met and defeated the Clovers of Vancouver, by a score of 13 to 7 at the Royal Athletic park. At no time were the locals in danger of defeat.

In their first time at bat the visitors filled the sacks with only one down, but were unable to find Steele for the necessary bingle, and were retired without a score. Their first run was tallied in the third, when Andrews came home on an error and a couple of timely singles. They added five more in the seventh, owing to the wildness of Surphils, who had replaced Steele.

The Hills, on the other hand, had been kicking up the dust around the bases right along, scoring four runs in the first on four clean hits, one in the second, two in the third, three in the fourth and three in the seventh.

VANCOUVER VS. ALBION 1ST XI.
On the Beacon Hill grounds H. H. Pegler scored 52, unfortunately running himself out. His innings was the feature of the game.

In the fore-part of the game the batsmen played for their runs, but after Peers had secured 80 and the side's total was 200 the field became demoralized. Mr. Peers made no particular effort when run out and seemed very glad to retire. The score was:

SPORT NOTES

Absolutely demoralized and beaten on all sides and recognizing that they were opposed by a team which had their measure in all phases of the encounter, the Salmonbellies went down to defeat at Recreation park, Vancouver, yesterday, with a score of 6 to 2 registered against them by the Vancouver aggregation. The game was an exhibition one and the score will count in deciding as to the distribution of the gold medals which will be awarded to the team which scores the most goals in the two matches which have been arranged. The second game will be played to-morrow afternoon.

TECUMSEHS INVINCIBLE.

Toronto, June 23.—Before some 7,000 spectators the Tecumsehs defeated the Toronto yesterday, and once more earned the title of city champions, although, the honor was a foregone conclusion, after the first game at Scarborough beach when Querie's braves slaughtered the blue and white. The Indians were always in the lead, being ahead the first quarter 3 to 0, at half time 5 to 1, three-quarters 5 to 3, and the final score 8 to 4. It was a parlor lacrosse the two teams played. There was not the hard checking the fans usually see between the two teams or in any league contest. The play being very open throughout, however, the Indians showed better team work than their rivals, the work of the blue and white home being very varied in spots. Tierney, the Toronto goalkeeper, had one of his bad days and no less than five of the goals were scored from away out. He never stopped a shot in the first five.

ABOUT BASEBALL

Many of the fans are living in hopes of seeing Narveson, the pitcher who was drafted to the Twilight league by the local club, appear any day, when as a matter of fact the Moosejaw club has the power to hold Narveson until the end of the season and it is a pretty good bet that they will do so.

The standing of the Northwestern League team is:

Team	W.	L.	Pct.
Spokane	49	25	.615
Tacoma	40	35	.533
Vancouver	40	35	.533
Portland	39	36	.513
Seattle	29	46	.387
Victoria	14	49	.222

Two senior amateur games are slated for to-morrow at Oak Bay, the Giants and the Bays taking the diamond at 2 p. m., and the Hills and Prides at 4 p. m.

An intermediate ball game will be played at Beacon Hill this evening, commencing at 6.30 o'clock sharp, between the Capitals and the East Ends. The battery for the Capitals is White and Pike, and Humber and Ward will pitch and catch for the East Ends.

The Giants take the field against the Bays at 2 p. m. Saturday at Oak Bay with the following line-up: Whyte, Winsby, Baines, Williams, Brown, McDiarmid, McKittrick, McIlmoyl, Richmond.

Those errors of McMurdo's on first are pretty costly. He gave the game away in the morning and in the afternoon started the Bayers on a merry-go-round that made things look blue for a time.

CORONATION STAKE IS WON BY ADA MEADE

Mare Finished Ahead of Colinet and Jack Paine, and Broke Record

Vancouver, June 22.—Over 1,000 people saw Ada Meade win the coronation handicap at Minor's park yesterday afternoon. The weather was ideal and the track fast. Seven horses were entered in the feature race of the day, but Ada Meade, breaking the track record for one mile and 70 yards, finished home ahead of Colinet and Jack Paine. The time, 1:44 4-5, eclipsed the track record made by Colinet last Wednesday of 1:45 2-5.

Results:
First race, five furlongs, the King George selling purse, $200, for three-year-olds. Value to winner, $140—1, Mazie Girl; 2, Sable O-Day; 3, Sneezer. Time, 1:02.

Second race, five furlongs, the King Edward selling purse, $200, for three-year-olds and upwards—1, Lord Clinton; 2, Hand Satchel; 3, Bal Reed. Time, 1:02 1-5.

Third race, five furlongs, the Queen Victoria selling purse, $200, for three-year-olds and upwards—1, Velma; 2, Sir Pretful; 3, Combury. Time, 1:01 2-5.

Fourth race, five and a half furlongs, the King William purse, for four-year-olds and upwards—1, Waner; 2, Bell-snick; 3, Renee W. Time, 1:08 2-5.

Fifth race, six furlongs, Queen Elizabeth purse, $250, for three-year-olds and upwards—1, Judge Henderson; 2, Dargin; 3, Blondy. Time, 1:14.

Sixth race, one mile and 70 yards, the Coronation handicap purse, $100; value to winner, $80; for three-year-olds and upwards—1, Ada Meade; 2, Colinet; 3, Jack Paine. Time, 1:44 4-5.

Seventh race, one and one-sixteenth miles, the King Alfred selling purse, $250, for three-year-olds and upwards—1, Capewell; 2, My Bouquet; 3, Robert Hurst. Time, 1:48 1-5.

SIX PERSONS MISSING.

Salt Lake City, Utah, June 22.—There is much anxiety in this city over the lack of news from the party of six which went out in a gasoline launch on Great Salt Lake yesterday forenoon. The party consisted of Joseph Nelson, president of the Saltair Beach Company, and five of his nephews and nieces. They started on an excursion to Bird Island, a distance of some thirty miles.

During the afternoon a storm came up on the lake. It is possible that the launch took shelter on some island or was disabled. The party should have returned at 8 o'clock last night.

KILLED BY TRAIN.

San Rafael, Cal., June 22.—Frank S. Johnson, president of the Johnson-Locke Mercantile Company of San Francisco, was fatally injured while attempting to board a train at Kentfield, near here, late yesterday, and died within an hour. Johnson was a regent of the state university, and was 58 years old. Frank Johnson, his elder son, has attained some prominence as an aviator.

TEXAS LYCHING.

Cameron, Texas, June 22.—Warrants have been issued for four persons suspected of having participated in the lynching of a Mexican boy at Thorn-dale, near here several days ago. More warrants are probable. The names of the suspects have not been made public.

The fans will, if the management holds to its present plans, have a chance to see Williams' work to-morrow.

A double-header will be played at the Royal Athletic park to-morrow afternoon, the first game commencing at 2.30 o'clock and the second at 4, or thereabouts.

Cook street and the business centre does not pay great dividends, and that to duplicate it on Yates street, which would of course be a necessary part of any new service up Yates street, would mean only so much dead weight. As things are at present it is a questionable proposition if the company would adopt the project even if the property owners on the street were willing to pay 100 per cent of the cost of construction. Only a few cars could possibly be run over such a route, but it is claimed that the traffic would not be sufficient to maintain it, or at any rate, sufficient to justify the maintenance of it.

When seen by a Times representative on the matter this morning Mr. Howard stated that no definite proposition for a car route had been placed before the company. A few of the property owners on the street who had been considering the advisability and the advantages of having such a line traversing their thoroughfare had interviewed him on the subject with the idea of ascertaining his opinion on the merits and demerits of the proposition. It so happened that what they heard was mostly demerits. Whether the matter will be pushed further, or be allowed to remain in its present chrysalis stage is a question he is not in a position to answer. Personally he does not see the utility of such a line. He cannot imagine how such a line would pay, and as that is the primary consideration in dealing with such a project he could not reasonably be expected to countenance it with his approval.

CHINESE DEVELOP NEW TRAITS. Suppression of Pneumonic Plague Reveals New Character.

The almost entire cessation of the pneumonic plague in China has aroused a large amount of comment. As a matter of fact, it was currently believed by those who were studying the plague on the ground that with the coming of warmer weather the plague would die down and possibly disappear altogether, only to revive again next winter.

One of the English missionaries in China, who has been there for many years, is according to a letter from Lord William Cecil to the London Times, responsible for another theory and one which, if well based, has rather more meaning on world affairs than the vagaries of disease germs. This missionary asserts roundly that the disappearance of plague was due to the marvelous efficiency and discipline of the Chinese, after they were once aroused to action, and to their willingness to accept new ideas. "Lord William adds that 'these qualities will write on the page of history a stranger story than the world has yet read.'"

They are not the qualities with which the world has credited the Chinese. Directly to the contrary. The Chinamen have been looked upon as the embodiment of conservatism, with an attachment impossible to shake to the ways of his ancestors and a distrust, if not an actual contempt, for all methods not sanctified by antiquity.

Yet there has been much within a comparatively recent period to shake these ideas and to bring about a belief that the Chinese are about to exhibit a spirit of astonishing progressiveness. Perhaps what has been looked upon as a deep-seated conservatism, impossible to shake, was merely the arrogance natural to the oldest civilization in the world, a civilization which was in its flower when the ancestors of the modern European races were sunk in absolute barbarism. The shocks to the arrogant self-sufficiency of the Chinese which have been given in recent years may have penetrated so far down as to bring the real Chinaman to the surface. The same vigor and discipline which has routed the plague and which is sweeping away the opium curse may alter and affect the whole world when displayed in a wider field.—Dawson News.

At the manse, yesterday afternoon,
Rev. Dr. Campbell celebrated the marriage of Mr. Donald McAdie, of Glenmerton, Scotland, and Miss Isabella Plenderleith Baynes, only daughter of Thomas Baynes, of Edinburgh, Scotland. The bridegroom was supported by Mr. Robert D. Marshall, and the bride was accompanied by Miss Christina McAdie, the bridegroom's sister.

A very pretty wedding took place on Thursday afternoon, June 15 at 4 o'clock at the Centennial Methodist church, when Agnes L. Irene, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Strickland, 2938 Bridge street and Mr. W.
G. Malcolm, of Belfast, Ireland, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony,
the Rev. A. J. Brace officiating. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with carnations and ferns
and the altar was decked with red roses.

The pretty bride, who was given away by her father, looked lovely in a beautiful gown of white satin and lace, elaborately trimmed with pearls,
a wedding veil also trimmed with pearls, and a wreath of orange-blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of white roses and stood beneath a bell of white roses. The bride was attended by her cousin, Miss Mae Smith,
of Vancouver, who was dressed in pale blue and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. Little Mary A. Martin was the flower girl, and looked sweetly pretty in a blue voile trimmed with pink ribbons, and carried a basket of pink carnations. The groom was attended by Mr. P. Pierson, of Devonshire, England. After the short ceremony the bride and groom left the church
to the strains of a wedding march played by Mr. Edward Parsons.
Messrs. Clarence and George Bishop were the ushers.

A few intimate friends of the family followed the bride to her home, where a dainty wedding supper was partaken
of, and toasts to the health of bride and groom were responded to. Many guests were present at the reception in the evening. The bride and groom were seated under a large bell
of white roses to receive their guests.
Some beautiful selections of music
were furnished by Mr. Muir, accompanied by Miss Hall. After all had wished the young couple every joy

The Evening
Chit-Chat

By Ruth Cameron

"The desire to be first, always and everywhere, often destroys the worthiest intentions. How many people lose interest
because they cannot occupy the first place! And what rancour is evoked
against those who,
doing good for
good's sake alone,
acquire weight in the community."—Dora Melegari.

Isn't it a sad thought that there are people in this world to whom praise of other people is an insult and other men's success an intolerable thorn in the side?

And yet how many such people there are!

"It really isn't safe to praise any other girl's looks to Elaine." I heard a girl say the other day. "It makes her so cross that it's uncomfortable to be with her."

Elaine is a common type.
Only most of us dissemble our ugly
feeling rather better than that.

I verily believe envy stands behind
more enmities and kills more friendships than any other cause.

We can forgive quick temper, injustice, selfishness, ingratitude—indeed,
almost anything in a friend—sooner
than we can a demonstration of superiority, especially in the particular line in which we ourselves aim to excel.

I wonder if that may not be one reason why the sex friendship—love, I mean—is so much more enduring than the other kind—because the two participants are not doing sufficiently similar things to make envy possible?

If the day ever comes when married women commonly have a vocation outside of the home, was to the couple who do the same kind of work. It seems ideal to think of husband and wife working together at the same art
or trade, sharing the same interests
and stimulating and inspiring each other, but I very much suspect that under these conditions the little devil,
envy, would make more breaches than the cement of common interests could ever fill up.

Perhaps you think I am painting too
black a picture and that envy is not half so common as I imply.

Well, would you dare to say that you yourself are entirely immune?

Before you answer let me just suggest a test.

Say that you hear of another man's very brilliant success in your own particular line of work—a man sufficiently similar in age, situation and opportunity to suggest comparison between you.

Now, what are your inmost feelings?

Are you at once wholesomely, entirely, unalloyedly glad of his success?

Do you just long to shake his hand
and congratulate him, and to tell everyone else about his wonderful success?

Or along with your joy for him is there a taint of discontent with your own lot, a little resentment that it is not you whom people are praising; an uncomfortable suspicion people are wondering why you don't do something like that?

Not the least bit, you say?

Well, I'm heartily glad. I'd like to shake your hand and congratulate you on being one of the finest and rarest of God's creatures—a thoroughly whole-souled and generous human being.

And yet—a confession. I think I'm envying you for being able to feel that way.

One can always get the very latest footgear "notion"—

KING AND QUEEN DRIVE THROUGH LONDON STREETS

those taking part in the procession drove in open carriages, thus adding much interest to the pageant.

Almost exactly at the appointed hour the colonial and Indian contingents, which were to lead the way over the seven mile route, formed on Victoria embankment and proceeded up the Mall, past Buckingham Palace to Constitution Hill and Hyde Park corner.

It was a wonderful display of soldiery that preceded the carriages exhibiting all the cavalry uniforms of the empire.

A contingent of Canadians escorted the first carriage, occupied by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, premier of Canada, and Premier Fisher of Australia. This was followed by other carriages carrying Premier Morris of Newfoundland, Premier Botha of the Union of South Africa, Premier Ward of New Zealand, the governors and commissioners of smaller colonies, escorted by troops from their respective countries. They were followed by the ever-popular troopers, the Northwest Mounted Police and African force organized on similar line.

The Colonials in royal carriages and wearing uniforms and decorations came next and were cheered all along the line and with especial vigor when they passed the stands occupied by their fellow countrymen.

For picturesque of the Indian section, the next in line, could not be excelled anywhere in the world. The Indian cavalry in the most gorgeous silken robes and turbans, wearing medals won on the field of battle, preceded the carriages in which was riding Indian princes, and potentates. The latter were fairly weighed down with jewels of enormous value. Their costumes, turbans and tunics were of every imaginable hue.

Although enjoying the spectacle as Londoners would, people were out to-day to see their Majesties and when a salute fired by a battery in Hyde park announced that the King and Queen had left the palace, there was a rush on the part of those who had not already obtained places at points from which they might get a glimpse of their Majesties. The royal procession was made up much as on yesterday, though somewhat longer as it included many who before were in attendance at Westminster Abbey.

In advance was a long line of troopers and officials, Indian, Colonial, and British, all brilliantly uniformed. A drizzling rain fell as the royal carriage, drawn by eight cream colored steeds, slowly came up Constitution Hill, but it did not dampen the enthusiasm of the crowds, who were to give their sovereigns their first welcome since Coronation day.

The King wore a field marshal's uniform with a sash of the Order of the Garter. The Queen, was dressed in white and wore a blue sash of the Order of the Garter. Her hat was trimmed with ostrich feathers in two shades of blue.

From then on to the end of the long route their Majesties received a spontaneous and royal welcome.

Following the sovereigns was a carriage containing the Duke of Connaught and the Duchess, princes, generals and officers of staff, including the Earl of Granard, the Duke of Norfolk and military attaches, among them Major S. L. H. Storm, of the American embassy.

The procession stopped at Waterloo Place to receive an address from the council of Westminster City and at other points addresses from local authorities.

Winston Churchill as home secretary attended the ceremonies, accepting the addresses for the King and delivering to the King the reply which he was to make.

At Temple Bar there was a more elaborate ceremony. Here the Lord Mayor of London, aldermen and the sheriffs, on horseback, awaited the coming of their Majesties and upon their arrival, surrendered to the king the city's pearl sword.

His Majesty simply touched the hilt as a sign of his acceptance, the Lord Mayor then receiving back the sword as Lord Mayors have done for many years.

The Lord Mayor then remounted and with the sheriffs, joined the procession, continuing with it until it reached the city boundary at London Bridge.

As the Sovereigns passed through the centre of the city, millions of lights, arranged for illuminations, were turned on and the great crowd about the Royal Exchange redoubled their cheers.

On the other side of London Bridge the King was in one of his many home districts, or rather his former home for here, as the Duke of Cornwall, he was the largest landlord.

In their addresses the southern boroughs referred to the improvements which the King had made in buildings, which are occupied by the poorer classes.

In reply His Majesty paid a tribute to the work done by the borough councils to improve the condition of the people, and promised that the Duchy would continue to do its share. All through the south of London and back again through Westminster, White Hall and Mall to Buckingham Palace, crowds filled the streets and stands that lined the route and cheered heartily the appearance of their Majesties.

A stirring day closed with an outburst on the part of the troops and the people in the vicinity of Buckingham Palace, similar to the spontaneous demonstration, made yesterday when the sovereigns showed themselves on the balcony of the palace, upon their return from the coronation ceremonies at Westminster Abbey.

CANADIAN TEAM STARTS FOR BISLEY

RIFLEMEN SAIL ON ALLAN LINER VIRGINIA

Most of Members Have Had

Big Rifle Meet

Montreal, June 25.—The Canadian Bisley rifle team who are to uphold the honor of Canada at the famous inter-imperial matches in the Old Country next month, and incidentally endeavor to win as many prizes for themselves individually as they can, went aboard the Allan liner Victorian last night at 10 o'clock and sailed this morning at daybreak. With a Montreal officer in command, Major J. J. Burlan, of the 3rd Victoria Rifles, the team comprises for the most part men who have had a good deal of experience at Bisley and remembering the fact that they have helped to bring the Canadian contingent a notch or two higher each year towards the much coveted King's Prize and in the general standing, it is expected that this year's will give a good account of themselves.

The personnel of the contingent includes Major J. J. Burlan, of the 3rd V. R. C. Montreal, in command; Sgt. Jas. Freeborn, 13th Regiment, Hamilton, Ont.; Private W. J. Clifford, 10th R. HON. W. TEMPLEMAN VISITS COMOX-ATLIN

presided and in the course of his address of welcome expressed the hearty appreciation of the residents of Stewart of what the minister, as their member, had done for them.

In his remarks Mr. Templeman devoted special attention to mining development in the vicinity of Stewart and referred to the fact that Mr. McConnell, of the Mines Department, one of the ablest geologists in America, was on hand, in pursuance of instructions given by him, to continue the work of examining the district, begun last year. The minister expressed marked confidence in the mineral possibilities of the country served by Stewart as an outlet and said he was prepared to support any reasonable railway proposition calculated to open what he believed would prove to be a very productive district.

In this connection, it is noteworthy that the representatives of Sir Donald Mann, who are constructing the Portland Canal Short Line from Stewart to the mines, fourteen or fifteen miles away, took advantage of the minister's visit to run the first train over the road. The track has been splendidly laid along the valley for six or seven miles and Mr. Templeman and the dozen or so citizens of Stewart who took the trip immensely enjoyed the run, particularly in view of the fact that it was an inaugural one.

Mr. Templeman was struck by the progress made by Prince Rupert during the last twelve months. The enterprising people of the Grand Trunk Pacific terminals are showing energy and resourcefulness in dealing with the many difficult matters which confront new communities that are indeed an inspiration.

The work of street grading is being actively carried on and in this direction alone the infant metropolis is spending more money than many cities whose population runs into five figures. When the work is finished Prince Rupert will present an attractive appearance. Work will soon be started by the Grand Trunk Pacific company upon the construction of a dock which will cost more than two million dollars. A large cold storage plant, representing an outlay of a million and a half, is now well under way and the Dominion government is building a wharf and other structures required for its marine station, which will involve a large outlay. There are busy times ahead of Prince Rupert.

"What did your wife say when you got home the other night?"
"Not a word. She just sat down on the piano and played 'Tell Me the Old, Old Story'."

A horse may live twenty-seven years, but both lions and camels have been known to attain the age of forty.

Officials Want to Raise Price of Shares of British Pacific Coal Co.

Trustee's Announcement Interferes

If it were at all possible to advance the price on the next issue of shares in the British Pacific Coal Company held by T. R. Morrow, Trustee, which is to be placed on the market on the morning of the 27th at 50 cents, to 75 cents or one dollar per share, such announcement would be made at once, since the executive have sufficient information of a confidential character from the property to fully warrant a price of at least 75 cents or $1.00 per share to-day.

The experts employed by the Company have completed a most thorough and searching inspection and have reported through the superintendent that the property of the British Pacific Coal Company embraces one of the largest producers of anthracite coal in the North American continent, which coal carries at least 83 per cent fixed carbon and that the tonnage in the one seam, and there are six seams in the property, is reported on by Alexander Faulds to be 36,000,000 of tons so that the total tonnage will be at least double this amount.

There is brisk buying of the 35 cent shares at the office of T. R. Morrow, Trustee of the British Pacific Coal Company, 604 Broughton street, Victoria.

The new price of 50 cents per share on Tuesday morning, June 27th, makes the holders of 35 cent shares a profit of 15 cents on each and every share held.

No application for 35 cent shares received for less than 100 shares. Terms, 10 cents per share cash, and the balance spread over a period of three months

Address your applications, make your cheques payable to the order of T. R. Morrow, Trustee, whose office is situated at 604 Broughton street, and is open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily.

VANCOUVER LICENSE

INSPECTOR BLAMED

Scored by Medical Health Officer for Present Conditions of Hotels

Vancouver, June 22.—"If the license inspector would live up to the letter of the law there would be no trouble," declared Dr. Underhill at the meeting of the health committee. He was speaking in reference to charges made by the license commissioners that his department had failed to do its duty in reference to certain hotels.

Dr. Underhill said that last year the license commissioners asked to have certain hotels inspected and in every case it was done, and a written report sent to them. He had told them at that time if they wanted anything done in future to write to him and he would attend to it, but since then he had had no communication from them. Apart from that, if the license inspector would live up to the spirit of the law there would be no difficulty. Under the restaurant by-law the license inspector was supposed to send to every applicant for a license a printed form to fill out. This form must be submitted to the health department, and if they did not approve of it no license could be granted.

"I claim," he said, "that the license inspector has deliberately broken the without having the application forms filled in. If these places were inspected by my department before a license was granted we should be responsible for them, but without such inspection we are not responsible."

This closed the reference to the license commissioners' remarks. The balance of the meeting was devoted to routine business.

NEW AUDITOR FOR NEW WESTMINSTER

Successor to M. B. Cotsworth Will Be Selected Next Month

New Westminster, June 22.—The last meeting of the city council adjourned at twenty-five minutes past twelve in the morning after a session extending over four hours, during which the reading of M. B. Cotsworth's two lengthy statements occupied much of the time. The sitting had almost come to a close, and the motion to adjourn was looked for when Alderman Lynch rose, and asked if the corporation had at this time an auditor on the ninth of this month. That being so, and that date being past, it was reasonable to ask if there was an official acting in that capacity. To force the point, the alderman moved that applications for the post of auditor to the city be advertised for and asked to be in by July 1.

Alderman Gray seconded the motion, and a general discussion took place on the matter, heated arguments being the general order. After a debate it was decided to alter the date for receiving applications until July 15, as the auditor had to assist the finance committee in many matters which were still under adjustment.

Alderman Dodd moved as an amendment that the whole matter lie on the table until next meeting so that the council might know whether they were doing this or whether they were not. This was seconded by Alderman Bryson, and after a few minutes' discussion the motion was carried. Alderman Campbell having left the chamber, the mayor gave his casting vote in favor of the amendment.

Before going to the vote some members spoke highly of the services which the auditor had rendered to the city.

Alderman Johnston while declaring in a measure his pleasure to be able to appreciate the work done by Mr. Cotsworth, yet expressed the view that if the auditor stuck more to facts and figures instead of presenting reports which had the personal element dominating, as he declared, it would have been better accepted by the people, and certainly would have put him on a sounder platform with the aldermen. The auditor, in his opinion, had gone further than a public servant should, and if any applying for the position next month, Mr. Cotsworth would make it clear to the aldermen that he would refrain from passing comments upon matters which, when all was said and done, should not interest him. He (the speaker) would be one of the first to support him.

URGED TO END STRIKE OF MINERS

Government Asked to Cause Opening of Mines—Minister's Efforts Appreciated

Nelson, June 22.—The Board of Trade at Nelson at a special meeting to consider the effect of the coal strike, passed a resolution that the attention of the government be at once called to the seriousness of the situation with a view of preventing further loss of time by the board by conciliation, and that the government be asked should further delay not be avoidable to cause the opening of the mines under a guarantee to the workers so that danger and loss might not be incurred. The Board of Trade at the same time strongly recommended as far as possible that publicity of all proceedings should be given. The board also places on record its appreciation of the efforts already made by the Minister of Labor to bring about a settlement. The resolution will be sent to the acting Premier, to the Minister of Labor, to Mr. Gordon, the chairman of the conciliation board, and to the Calgary, Lethbridge, Fernie, Cranbrook and Rossland boards of trade.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH

Vancouver, June 22.—That Edward J. Bryan came to his death on Thursday, June 15, as a result of accidentally falling on the pavement. Such was the verdict of Coroner Jeff's jury. Dr. Curtis, who held the post-mortem examination testified that death was due to a fracture of the base of the skull. There were four witnesses called. Bryan was injured in front of the Atlantic hotel and died in the General Hospital a few hours later.

KOOLANAY OLD-TIMER DEAD

Nelson, June 22.—Hugh Nixon, aged 90, an old-timer of Koolanay, was found dead in his cabin on Cottonwood. He had been dead at least twenty-four hours. He is survived by six daughters and one son. One of the former is a Vancouver resident.

Obedience is the only path to any good, the one essential to the saving of the world. One who cannot obey is the merest slave—essentially and in himself a slave.—George MacDonald.

JAPANESE IDEAS OF PATRIOTISM

Religion and Love of Country One in Empire of Mikado

Since the anarchist episode official classes in Japan appear to have been seized with a passion for self-examination. Everywhere, both in the public and in private speech, there is constant expression of dissatisfaction with the nation's present moral condition, to which defect the recent anarchist disloyalty is attributed.

In this connection one has to bear in mind that in Japan morality and patriotism are practically identical, so that if a man be loyal and patriotic it covers a multitude of sins. It is therefore, for the Japanese to look upon any evidence of disloyalty as a mark of immorality. Consequently on all sides we have ministers of state, and those high in authority, calling on their subordinates to institute searching inquiry into local conditions, and take measures for the reformation of the nation's morals.

Recently Baron Obara, the minister for home affairs, summoned a conference in Tokio of all the provincial governors of the Empire, during which he took occasion to warn these officials against the dangers of allowing pernicious ideas from abroad to corrupt Japanese ideals of patriotism. Most remarkable of all is the fact that the authorities seem to have come to the conclusion that the defect deplored is somehow due to mistaken notions of religion or to lack of religion. Here again it must be remarked that in Japan, not only is loyalty pretty much the same thing as morality, but it is religion as well.

Both the minister of home affairs and the minister of education have instructed all officials under them to urge greater reverence for the temples and shrines, and to do what they can toward strengthening faith not only in the native religion but in all religions obtaining among the people. It is now openly claimed by these and other official authorities that religion is a great aid to moral education. The movement made by the government some two years ago for the suppression of numerous shrines occupying valuable land in various parts of the country is to be abandoned, and worship of the old gods, as well as the new, is to be encouraged.

Government officials, in short, have come to a realization of the fact that the powerlessness of the state machinery to guide and control the ideals of the nation without religion of some kind.

FELL DEAD ON STREET

Vancouver, June 22.—Arthur Stanley Marsh, proprietor of a hotel, died very suddenly on Bute Street at an early hour the other morning. Mr. Marsh had been watching the fire at the Franklin motor garage on Georgia Street, where his own automobile was destroyed. He was walking home with his son at about 3 o'clock in the morning, and had reached the 800 block on Bute Street, when he complained of feeling unwell. The next instant he collapsed and fell unconscious on the sidewalk.

Mr. Marsh, it ran for medical aid and secured Dr. J. F. McKenzie, but by the time they arrived life was extinct. The police and Mr. Marsh's family were notified, and the remains removed to the undertaker's. Mr. Marsh came here a few years ago from Alberta, and has conducted the Astor hotel for the past year. He was born in Manchester, England. He was for many years a conductor on the C. P. R.'s western division. Mr. Marsh leaves a wife, daughter and three sons, all in Vancouver, and one sister in England.

A man at Munich who lost $10.00 in bank notes in the street and advertised a $200 reward to the finder received a cheque for $2.70 from a man who wrote that, to avoid delay, he had appropriated his due.

Are Your Kidneys Working Properly?

It Will Pay You Well to Make Sure There's been a lot of "guessing" about rheumatism and rheumatic pains generally, but you can be dead sure that little pain across your back came from decreased kidney action.

The kidney's duty is to filter the blood and take out the impurities collected by the returning blood stream—do it just like absorbent cotton in a funnel filters the impurities from polluted water. When the kidneys are not working you are bound for one of two courses—Diabetes and Bright's Disease or Rheumatism, Lumbago and Sciatica. The former is usually fatal, and the latter always painful, but you need not have either, as they both can be easily prevented.

The very best prescription for all kidney troubles is Nyal's Stone Root Compound. It is no "patent" medicine, but a scientific prescription composed of Stoneroot, Buchu, Juniper and other remedies of proved value. More than that, it has been proved by thousands who have had glad relief from its use.

There's nothing quite so miserable as the dragging results of sick kidneys. You are trying with your own future whether you are really ailing, and the latter as a pleasant home treatment with Nyal's Stone Root Compound when results are so certain.

It soothes bladder irritation, gives you rest and comfort at night, and makes life once more enjoyable.

The kidneys, liver and bladder are all dependent upon one another, and Nyal's Stone Root Compound is particularly designed to help them all.

WHY COLONIES WANT IMPERIAL COUNCIL

Privy Council as Final Authority Not Accepted in United Kingdom

The Montreal Herald, discussing in "The Third Column" a phase of one of the many subjects before the Imperial Conference, says:

Canada is not agitating for a change in the appellate court of the British Dominions. Mr. Brodeur, the minister of marine and fisheries, who knows something of the wishes of the legal profession, says this Dominion is satisfied with things as they are and quite content with the process of appeal to the judicial committee of the Privy Council of which the lord chancellor, who was quite prepared with a scheme for a split and span Imperial Appeal court, is usually the presiding judge.

It would, of course, be unfair to look in the abstract of the discussion at the Imperial Conference heard earlier over for the most convincing arguments in favor of a change.

There was rather a wide range of difference of opinion on the subject. The truth is, rather a poor case was made out by the new court, although it was shown that a new court could be constituted which would sit in the House of Lords when it was hearing United Kingdom cases and in committee room of the Privy Council when cases from the Dominions overseas are being heard. Some of the objections to the judicial committee are sentimental, for the judges are of equal eminence with those who hear British cases in the House of Lords—indeed in some cases they are the same.

A prominent constitutional authority found it necessary to support his contention for change by the remark that "the Privy Council is right out of the picture of Empire, it belongs to the day of Dominions." It is not an Imperial court in any sense. It hears no appeals from the courts of Great Britain or of Ireland. Its decisions are not binding on an English county court judge. The Court of Appeal has more than once refused to follow it. The House of Lords, of course, is not in any way bound by it. It is never very doubtful, according to Sir F. Pollock, whether its decisions are binding on one part of the Empire or another. These facts rob the Privy Council of any support based upon the desirability of securing uniformity of judicial decisions throughout the Empire. "Whatever changes may be made in the constitution and procedure of the judicial committee," says the late Mr. Justice Clark, formerly a Justice of the Supreme Court of Tasmania, and a high constitutional authority.

Uniformity of judicial decisions will not be secured for all parts of the Empire so long as there is one court of final resort for the United Kingdom and another for the colonies and dependencies of the Empire.

This is the strongest point in the case against the Privy Council. Defects in its constitution and procedure can be remedied. But so long as it remains a Court of Appeal for the colonies only it can never satisfy the requirements of an Imperial tribunal of final resort.

Such are among the arguments of those who advocate the change.

One of the Australian contentions is that the Privy Council does not answer the requirements of the entirely inadequate provision at present made for the presence of the great self-governing Dominions from which appeals are brought. These representatives would bring with them that local knowledge which, although its value may be easily overrated, might frequently prevent irritating and harmful mistakes. The resolution submitted to the conference shows that this defect is very strongly felt in other parts of the Empire besides Australia. The New Zealand representatives suggested as a means of securing representation of the overseas Dominions of the court which is to hear colonial appeals, that judges from each of the Dominions should serve a fixed term of duty, one after another, as members of this court.

The Imperial Conference puts it up to the government seeking a change to evolve a scheme that will be satisfactory to all. There is a desire in Australia to secure better colonial representation, improve on the methods embodied in Lord Rosebery's act of 1885 and the more recent enactment passed by the present government in 1908. The earlier of the Acts enables five judges or ex-judges of any superior court of Canada or of any of the Australian states, if they are members of the Privy Council, to be appointed as members of the judicial committee. Under this act it is quite possible that a judge of an Australian state court, whose judgments in Australia are subject to review by the High Court, should sit on an appeal from the High Court to the Privy Council. This is an obvious anomaly.

The act of 1908 widens the opportunity for securing colonial representation on the Privy Council by enabling colonial judges "to attend as assessors," a privilege which they are not likely to value, very highly or exercise very often. In any case, these acts, so far as Australia is concerned, have been practically a dead letter, and seem likely to remain so. Adequate representation of the overseas Dominions cannot be secured by utilizing the casual services of a travelling colonial judge who happens to be in London.

DIES SUDDENLY ON TRAIN

New Orleans, La., June 22.—While en route from Los Angeles to her daughter's home in Kinsey, N. C., Mrs. D. H. Phillips, mother of the late David Graham Phillips, the author, died suddenly yesterday on a Southern Pacific train a few miles west of Jennings, La. Her body was shipped to Madison, Ind., for burial. Mrs. Phillips was 32 years old and had been in failing health since the tragic death of her son in New York.

GOVERNOR AIDS IN CAPTURE OF CONVICT

Oswald West, of Oregon, Leads Posse When Informed of Prisoner's Escape

Corvallis, Ore., June 22.—The capture of a felony convict, highway robber and general bad man by a posse headed by the governor of the state, who felt morally bound to release the prisoner because of a misplaced confidence, concluded a chase which ended in the apprehension of Jess Hall near Blodgett late yesterday.

Governor Oswald West of this state, has taken great interest in the reform of criminals and recently established the custom of taking the parole of penitentiary convicts and, garbing them like ordinary workmen, sending them out to do road work. The plan worked well until a few days ago, when Jess Hall, in prison for highway robbery, broke his parole and took French leave. Hall's fellow-companions in the prison gang of sixty-five were resentful as was Governor West mortified at the "I told you so" of the numerous critics of his state. The prisoners in a letter to the governor apologized for Hall's act, and begged the governor not to discard the scheme without further trial.

Governor West joined the posse early yesterday and taking the leadership of one gang, took up the trail. After an all-day pursuit he ran upon Hall peacefully asleep alongside a well-travelled road. Without sleep for 36 hours, without food for 24 hours and debilitated by a wound from the gun of one of the pursuers, Hall had fallen asleep in his tracks. The bad man was captured before he was fully awakened. Asked by the governor on the way back to Salem why he had broken his parole, Hall replied: "I wanted to see my old mother, and twenty years was a long time to wait." His mother lives at Waldport, Ore.

To the Editor:—Will you give me room in your paper to say one word which all Victoria wants to see said, in connection with yesterday's brilliant success? It is, "Thank you, and thank you again," to those ladies to whose exquisite taste and untiring toil for many days past, most of the beauty of our streets was due. I believe that if there were any public way in which such thanks could be tendered it would be gladly seized upon. We are proud of the beauty of our city and of our women who make it more beautiful. If I were famous I would sign my name, as I let me remain UNKNOWN.

NEW Models for Smart Summer Gowns

BY MRS. A. T. ASHMORE.

THE fashionable wardrobe of today demands such a number of gowns that it is extremely difficult to select a suitable variety of style and color. Some women, and they are well gowned, too, contend that they find it wiser and naturally far simpler to select a model that is becoming and then have several gowns of different colors and materials all built on those lines. It is a known fact that one New York woman last winter ordered from a Paris house thirty-five velvet gowns, all made exactly alike, in order, as she said, always to look smart and up-to-date. She also included a goodly number of other gowns in her winter wardrobe. So it may be seen what a task the choosing of a fashionable outfit really is.

The silk or satin costume is now part and parcel of every well ordered wardrobe. Satin is alarmingly popular, but silk, while smart, has not as yet taken its place in popular favor. Crêpe de Chine, voile de to match. Trimmings of braid, soutache and fancy braid of all kinds, bias folds, often velvet, although the latter material is heavy and warm in mid-summer, trim the skirt, while on the jackets the fancy revers give the touch of contrast lightness that redeems the too dull look.

The dark blue and the very dark green satin costumes have revers of much lighter shade of the same color, and often a contrasting color is used on the black in the same revers and collars and cuffs. The satin waist to match the gown is very smart, but there are now the thinner, lighter waists of voile net or lace that are newer and better adapted for hot weather.

The serge costume, one of the first to make its appearance in the spring of the year, is invariably included in the fashionable summer wardrobe. White serge is always associated with summer fashions, but there must be also the blue serge for practical use, for travelling and for cool and rainy days during the summer season. There is always a certain conventional quality of style about the smartest of these serge costumes. A rather severe tailor made fashion is always awarded the palm. The narrow skirt, the short, half fitting jacket is the accepted model this year again, the difference from last year being more in the skirt. The coat is shorter but on much the same lines. A narrow velvet or silk faced collar and turned back cuffs are the smart trimming, while the skirt is plain or trimmed only with the same material. A hair line chevron or serge is smart this season, but the plain blue is always in demand. This year the fine cord is the smartest, and a smooth face effect, which after all does seem more in keeping with summer.

For Cool Days.

With the first hot days the cloth and wool costumes of all kinds lose their charm and interest, centres on the transparent thin and cool fabrics that are certainly by far the most comfortable to wear once the thermometer begins its upward trend, but again it must be said that a wool gown is often necessary to comfort in mid-summer, and so women who have been credited with understanding dress would ever be without a suitable gown should the weather turn cold. An exceedingly smart model that has been made up in several different materials and colors is excellent in the lightweight cloth or serge. The original model is in an odd shade of brown. Around the hem of the skirt and in cuffs and collar is deep velvet beaded with rows of narrow soutache braid. On the side of the skirt are rows of small gilt buttons which with brown and red are already effective, and there is a girdle of the velvet that shows below the extremely short jacket. A brown cloth combined with red velvet sounds unsuitable for summer, and in reality the same model carried out in different colorings and material is far more satisfactory. In cerise cloth with brown velvet, or, better still, with brown satin, it is most attractive and smart, while in white with a color, or in linen or pongee with a color contrast the gown is most lovely. So often it is possible to use different materials and colors in the copying of different models that dressmakers rarely think of copying exactly the original idea. A point to be noticed in this gown is the skirt, which has many possibilities that are bound to be used in the late autumn and early winter.

can now use the thinner material and not be unfashionable. There are all kinds of lingerie and lace gowns in style, and all summer they will be worn for all occasions. Combined with lace, and often more than one kind in the same gown, most exquisite effects are obtained, while the under dress or foundation can be of another color. All this has been told many times, but the variations, slight as they are, from week to week in the summer fashions must be noted by the woman who wants to be in touch with the latest fashions.

Many of the smartest lingerie gowns are exceedingly simple in design and apparently rely much more upon their beauty of workmanship than on the style of the gown. Almost without exception they are made with short skirts, the exception being the extremely elaborate lace and lingerie afternoon and evening gowns. Flat entire deus of lace or embroidery around the skirt, the simplest of close fitting waist with round lace yoke and elbow sleeves—this is a favorite and smart model that is as expensive as could be desired by the most extravagant. Black velvet or chiffon beneath the entire deus gives a smart touch, while the embroidered velvet belt tells a story to the initiated in the mysteries of dress, who recognize a master hand in the design just from the apparent simplicity and this last novel touch.

Sheer Yokes and Sleeves.

Elbow sleeves and low cut necks flaunt themselves before the public in most unlovely guise this season, and yet the fashion in itself for summer is not to be derided. A lace yoke, collarless, and lace undersleeves, close fitting below the elbow and reaching half way to the wrist, made of the sheerest material are most becoming and entirely do away with the unfinished and unbecoming effect of the short sleeve and low cut neck without the softening of the lace. The wide, loose sleeve is far more comfortable in hot weather, and the undersleeve of chiffon, with its flat band of lace, needn't be fitted close to the arm, either, but no woman looks well in a short, loose sleeve for day wear, no matter how beautifully shaped may be her arms. And the sensible woman who knows what is becoming never goes out with throat and part of her neck uncovered. The sheerest of net or lace yokes, not necessarily a high, tight collar, is becoming to the young as well as the older woman, and the line of embroidery against the throat is never so becoming as the edge of fine lace or net, which is so much softer. Even to a lingerie waist this detail should be carefully considered.

PRACTICAL POINTS ON SIMPLE GOWNS.

ARE colored or white wash dresses more expensive is a much debated question. White may soil the more easily, but when the horrible problem of laundering and cleaning has to be faced then white is the best to choose, for the uncertainty of how the colored materials will look after they are cleaned or laundered is generally decidedly unfavorable.

Pongee, foulard and all thin silk materials are really less expensive than linen in the end on this account, for if once twice cleaned during the summer they will look smart and in order. The thinnest of linings are sufficient, and often no lining is required, and the wash silks really do wash, so that if some simple model is chosen the gown can easily be washed, just as a linen or cotton would be. The present styles of straight skirts trimmed with bands of lace or embroidery are not difficult to launder and stand a better chance of not losing their color than many of the so-called wash materials.

The plain pongee and India silks are the coolest of all fabrics. In dark colors for travelling or hard wear they are unrivalled from the practical point of view. A lace yoke and cuffs are all the trimming necessary, and such a gown can be either cleaned or laundered with little difficulty. There are so many different grades of silks and foulards costing several dollars a yard, and of the newest shades of color and design, and also there are the most attractive of designs and colorings in silks that are almost absurdly cheap.

Colored muslins are also good investments—the dark ground with light figure, the stripes and checks and then the mercerized fabrics. One and all are within the reach of even a most limited income, while the simple styles make home dressmaking a much less arduous task than usual this season. Exaggeration of the exaggerated models has to be guarded against most carefully, and indeed a modification of any style selected is almost essential. But it may be questioned if there ever was a time when for so little a woman could be so well gowned as this season. Attractive materials are inexpensive, none of the gowns require many yards of material and, as has been said, are possible of home manufacture. The only danger lies in that being inexpensive too many are often chosen, and by that means more money is expended than when only two or three more expensive are selected.

JAPANESE FIREWORKS PROVED A NOVELTY

Fine Display on Beacon Hill of Daylight Aerial Effects
Followed Parade

One of the features of yesterday afternoon's celebration was the display of Japanese daylight fireworks, a novelty for this city. This took place from a stand on the lower ridge of Beacon Hill, looking toward the park, and was presided over by J. M. Nagano. A number of Japanese residents assisted him. There were many expressions of pleasure at the part this section of the population took in the celebration. Coming at the close of the review of the parade the display filled in the hour pleasantly and gave general delight. One of the attractions of the display was the uncertainty as to what was to float out from the exploding ball which was hurled aloft from the primitive-looking mortars, which looked like antique cannon, tightly bound with straw rope, standing on end. Now it would be a bird, again a fish, followed by flowers; British, Japanese and other flags depending from a parachute, or quaint Japanese dolls. The most artistic part of the display was in the form of a star-like cluster, of which several forms were seen. From a nebulous cloud darted out long, wavy tendrils of silvery smoke, which quickly dissolved to filmy threads and drifted away in fleecy clouds. One developed a perfect smoke ring and from another slowly descended a gaily-colored fish. The silk and paper figures which were released from the exploding bombs drifted slowly to the ground or lodging in the tree-tops of the park near the deer enclosure, in any event to become the treasured property of some youngster. The children were probably the most delighted by the display of any of the many thousands who saw it.

CAPT. D. H. JARVIS ENDS HIS LIFE

Former Secretary of Guggenheim-Morgan Companies
Shoots Himself

Seattle, Wash., June 23.—Capt. D. H. Jarvis, vice-president of the Booth Fisheries Company, and formerly head of the Guggenheim interests in Washington and Alaska, shot and killed himself in the Arctic Club shortly before noon to-day. Captain Jarvis was born in Berlin, Maryland, August 24, 1862, and entered the revenue cutter service in 1883. After his marriage to Miss Ethel Tupper, a niece of Hettie Green, April 2, 1896, Capt. Jarvis resigned from the revenue service. He became identified with the corporations which have since become the Morgan-Guggenheim property. In 1904, at which time the Pacific Packing and Navigation Company was in the hands of a receiver, Capt. Jarvis attempted to bring about a re-organization, and while so engaged met J. P. Morgan and induced him to take an interest in the company. In 1906 Capt. Jarvis resigned as collector of customs for Alaska and came to Seattle as general manager of the Northwestern Pacific Fisheries Company. Capt. Jarvis was in charge of the entire corporation business when the Guggenheim men clashed with employees of the Reynolds Alaska Railway at Keystone Canyon and bloodshed occurred. Until June of last year, Jarvis was secretary and treasurer of all the Morgan-Guggenheim companies. He resigned in spite of the entreaties of his employers. Later, when the Northwestern Fisheries Company was sold by the Morgan-Guggenheim syndicate to the Booth Fisheries Company, Captain Jarvis took the management of the company's interests in the Pacific Northwest.

On an envelope found in the desk, at which he had been seated, he had written this morning in a trembling hand, "tired and worn out." Before he shot himself he had been reading a book of Kipling's short stories and he had laid down the book at a point about half way through "The City of Dreadful Night." Captain Jarvis in his forty-nine years of life, had been a tremendous worker and he had used himself up by his labors. This is the explanation of suicide which his friends give. He apparently went from his home to the club for the purpose of ending his life. He was one of the most widely known men in the coast states.

RECIPROCITY PACT.

Senator Dandurand Says Agreement Will Be Endorsed.

New York, June 23.—Senator Raoul Dandurand, of Montreal, in an address at the banquet of the Canadian club of New York last night, declared that many well-informed people in the Dominion were of the opinion that the present reciprocity arrangement with the United States would be favored by ninety per cent of the Canadian electorate, if it were not made a party question. Senator Dandurand first spoke of President Taft's arbitration proposals and said that in no country had the suggestion met greater favor than in Canada.

With reference to the reciprocity arrangement Senator Dandurand said: "It is hazardous to prophesy; nevertheless, I will venture to predict that this reciprocity agreement will be endorsed by the parliament and the people of Canada, and that under it both countries will find profit and contentment."

PRESBYTERIANS AND THEIR CONFESSION

Language to the Literalness of Which Students Recently Took Exception

The recent refusal of a number of Presbyterian theological students to accept ordination without disclosing their dissent from the literal phrasing of the Westminster confession of faith has inspired an editorial writer in the Mail and Empire to pursue the subject. He says:

Many Presbyterians, no doubt, will be induced to look up their church's confession of faith as a result of the protest of the Knox College graduates, who frankly stated that they did not literally believe the famous document, and especially took exception to the passages referring to the Pope as anti-Christ, the doctrine of salvation by election only, and to the interpretation of the meaning of the oath. The general wording of the confession is objected to as crude, and it is said that there is a considerable body of opinion within the church that would favor another revision, the elimination of certain passages, and the modification of others. We may be equally sure that there is another body of opinion that would reject as impious any attempt to alter the confession, although those who support this view are confronted with the fact that the Westminster confession has already been amended several times. If, therefore, there was ground for earlier corrections, the possibility of there being still room for improvement might be admitted. Probably those who are in favor of no further changes take the view that earlier amendments were changes for the worse, and tended to a weakening of church authority.

It requires of theological and metaphysical training of no mean order to grasp the points of doctrine enunciated in the Westminster confession, and it would appear that it is a good deal easier for an ordinary layman to believe the document before he has read it than after. It is different, however, with theological students, to whom the meaning of the thirty-five chapters is clear enough. To others the chapter on predestination is difficult to understand. It declares that everything is predestined, and paragraph V. says:

"Those of mankind that are predestined unto life, God, before the foundation of the world was laid, according to His eternal and immutable purpose, and His secret counsel and good pleasure of His will, hath chosen in Christ, unto everlasting glory, out of His mere free grace and love without foresight of faith or good works, or perseverance in either of them, or any other thing in the creature, as conditions, or causes moving Him thereto; and all to the praise of His glorious grace."

The next paragraph goes on to say: "As God hath appointed the elect unto glory, so hath He, by His eternal and most free purpose of His will, fore-ordained all the means thereunto, wherefore they who are elected, being fallen in Adam, are redeemed by His blood in Christ by His Spirit working in due season, are justified, adopted, sanctified and kept by His power through faith unto salvation. Neither are any other redeemed by Christ, effectually called, justified, adopted, sanctified and saved but the elect only." The next paragraph declares that "the rest of mankind, God will, whereby He extended of His own will, whereby He showed forth the glory of His sovereign power over His creatures, to pass by and to ordain them to dishonor and wrath for their sin, to the praise of His glorious justice." Some eight years ago the church found it advisable to add a declaration regarding these paragraphs. They were not reworded, but for fear their meaning might not be quite clear it was explained that the doctrine was held in harmony with the doctrine of God's love for all mankind; that He desired not the death of the sinner; that Christ was a salvation sufficient for all and that no man is condemned except on the ground of his sin.

Chapter XXIX, which deals with effectual calling, seems to declare by inference that infants who died before they could be considered elect would not be saved. But the declaratory statement referred to above asserts that this meaning is not to be extracted from the paragraph, and states the belief that all infants are saved. In the same chapter it is asserted that men not professing the Christian religion cannot be saved "be they never so diligent to frame their lives according to the light of nature and the law of that religion they do profess; and to assist and maintain that they may be is very pernicious, and to be detested." This, of course, would doom all the Jews, Chinese, Japanese, Mohammedans, et al. to eternal perdition, and it is probable that the doctrine is not agreeable to a great many Presbyterians.

Chapter XXIX, concerns the Lord's Supper, and denounces private masses, receiving the Sacrament by a priest; worshipping the elements and other "Popish sacrifices" as abominably injurious. Transubstantiation is referred to as a superstition and a gross idolatry, and there are other unfriendly references to rites and claims of the Roman Catholic church. It is also asserted that there is no intermediate state such as purgatory; and that it is wicked and scandalous to pray for the dead. The confession does not mince words in speaking of the fate of the wicked, for it declares that after Judgment Day "they shall be cast into eternal torments and shall be punished with everlasting destruction."

The Guildford, Eng., borough education committee has decided not to appoint married women teachers in future, and that the marriage of a woman teacher in their employ shall be considered as equivalent to her resignation.

NOTES ON POULTRY RAISING FOR MARKET

NO. XI.

The writer feels that some apology may be due to his readers for venturing to refer again to the question of moisture in incubators, but he is so convinced of the importance of the question, as without chickens there can be no poultry business, that he gives the following further information which has been gathered on the subject.

The writer set 504 eggs in a Jubilee incubator; 117 eggs proved infertile and 23 were tested out on the 15th day as dead germs, leaving 354 eggs in the machine. Of these 305 hatched—strong, healthy chickens—being 86 per cent. of the fertile eggs and 60 per cent. of the total eggs set.

The writer found that the amount of moisture required was far greater even than he had supposed. The incubator house was built on boggy ground in order to obtain moisture. The soil was a stiff clay, and the writer found that, on making the holes in which to set the corner posts of the house, water filled the holes in a few minutes. The house was built on a slope, the fall being 18 inches in 14 feet—the width of the house. Cedar logs were laid on the floor, which was levelled up with earth thrown on the top. A drain was cut outside the house, and this always has water in it, showing that water is soaking under the floor, down the hill. The water from higher up the hill runs along the upper side of the house and turns along the front of it, so that there is running water on two sides of the house. The site must therefore be a very damp one. The writer followed the directions of the manufacturer and used moisture in the machine during the first five days, and from the 15th to the 21st day.

The machine is so constructed that moisture can be put into the moisture pan and let out from the outside of the machine, thereby avoiding the necessity of opening the glass doors of the front. This arrangement proved very advantageous, as the writer was able to pour boiling water every two hours into the moisture pan during the twelfth day.

The moisture in the eggs and the machine was by no means in excess, even after all the care taken to ensure sufficiency in this respect, and it is probable that if the moisture pan could not have been filled from outside the machine, the hatch would have proved a failure.

The writer believes that the moisture pan should in most cases be kept full from the beginning of the hatch, or at any rate for the first week, when the eggs may be allowed to dry down for a day or two, if the air cell seems too small in the egg.

Whether during the early season the writer's incubator house will prove too damp remains to be seen, but for raising ducklings it will probably be a satisfactory, as duck eggs require more moisture than those of fowls.

The acceptance of the writer's neighbor and friend, Mr. Hutchinson, is that moisture must, in his opinion, be used in raising ducks, and it is probable that this opinion is correct. There is a natural unwillingness to destroy chicks on the part of the experimenter, who knows that they will recover "let us give him a chance for his life," is a common and sportsman-like phrase, but it is a great mistake, where poultry breeding is concerned. Many chicks do struggle up into maturity, and if bred from will lay the foundations of that deterioration in the flock which must be avoided at all costs.

Raise no line which is not strong and healthy. Ruthlessly destroy chicks which all in any way, and much future trouble will be avoided.

WAGES OF WOMEN COMPARED WITH MEN

Conditions in Montreal Investigated—General Reasons for Apparent Contrasts

How are the salaries of women workers in Montreal to be compared with those of men in similar positions in the city? Do the stipends received by members of the fair sex who have entered the field of competitive business compare favorably with the men's?

General experience shows that they do not, says the Montreal Herald. Men receive about 50 to 100 per cent more pay than women in relatively the same position. In certain special fields women have achieved as great a success as the lords of creation, but for general office work, teaching, sales work, and other forms of clerking, the men command a higher stipend. Employers who are responsible for this state of affairs, say that in the first place, women never do as much or as efficient work as a man in the same position. Men are worth more, they are steadier, and more reliable. Many a big employer will hesitate before giving a pretty girl a position of trust. He knows she will get married and leave him just when she is becoming indispensable. When a man in the same position seeks matrimony he only becomes more valuable, and more steady.

Another reason put forward for paying men more salaries is that in most cases working girls have only themselves to support; whereas a man usually has a family dependent on him. Hence he requires a larger salary.

In large department stores the salaries of the men are nearly double those of women. Employers defend this scale on the ground that it is based on earning power, and adequately represents the value of a man compared with that of a woman behind a counter.

Mr. Fred. A. Scroggie, of W. H. Scroggie and Company, in discussing the situation, said that the salaries of sales girls varied from $5.50 up to $12 a week with an average of about $8.50. In special departments like the mantle department they received $15 or more.

The department stores give their sales people two increases a year, based on their earning power and their value to the department. Salesmen receive from $12 to $20 a week, with an average of $15 to $16.

Men floor walkers receive from $20 to $25 and up to $35 a week, and in ladies' departments, the women floor walkers receive from $15 to $18.

"The ambition of every sales person," said Mr. Scroggie, "is to become an assistant in a buyer, with the object of being a buyer eventually. We have women buyers whom we pay as high as $50 a week. In Chicago there is a woman buyer who receives $15,000; and it is nothing unusual in the States for a woman buyer to receive from $5,000 to $10,000. Women buy lace, underwear and hosiery. They make two or three trips to Europe every year."

"It is general experience that the majority of merchandise and wearing apparel can be better purchased by women than men. Men are apt to plunge, but women go cautiously."

Buyers receive from $40 to $100 a week, the men receiving more than the women. Mr. Scroggie alluded to the marked improvement in the treatment of women workers in big stores of to-day. "A few years ago girls had to stand all day," he said. "We supply chairs for our employees. We provide dining rooms and dressing rooms for them. Department store work offers an attractive field for young ladies, amid congenial and fascinating surroundings. Many of our girls are young ladies of good family, though of reduced circumstances."

Women have invaded with success the field of business. There are many more women than men stenographers. They start on $5 or $6 a week, and rise to $10 or $12, men usually start at about $10, and command salaries of from $12 to $16 or $17. Of course, many of both sexes get much larger salaries when they combine duties of secretaries with their stenographic efforts.

One of Montreal's uncrowned kings of capital, who thinks in millions, has a woman secretary who is invaluable. Her salary would make most people gasp.

A Montreal lady commands a bank president's salary by touring Europe and buying ornaments and rarities for C. P. R. Hotels.

Ladies have entered the restaurant field in Montreal, the most conspicuous being the proprietors of a popular uptown resort.

A young lady who graduated from McGill last year, with honors as a biologist, went to Vancouver, and is now earning $200 a month as the hustling manager of a big real estate company. The biology has been temporarily shelved, interest being centered on the real estate microbe.

Montreal has a number of very successful lady doctors, who have braved the honors of clinics and dissections for four years in order to be able to minister to their fellow beings.

Ladies have invaded the field of the commercial traveller and manufacturers' agent, and several of the fair sex are now showing samples in the east with no small measure of success. Ladies are found in the life insurance business.

A big livery and supply company and saddlery on Beaver Hall Hill is entirely managed by a woman. She fits harness and sells a collar or bridle with the ease that her sisters sell ribbon in a department store.

Ladies are now acting as medical health inspectors. The Provincial Bureau has in addition a lady building inspector.

In the Court House, where for years the males have held the field, there is now one lady stenographer out of fifteen. A number of factory inspectors are ladies.

Many big business and financial houses have trusted secretaries who are of the fair sex, and in one or two instances, it is the ladies who are at

FRENCH CABINET DECIDES TO RESIGN

Defeated in Chamber of Deputies—Ministry Was Formed by M. Monis in March

Paris, June 23.—The Monis government was defeated in the chamber of deputies to-day on a question relative to the supreme command of the army in case of war.

The deputies voted against the government 238 to 224, and this evening the ministers decided to present their resignations to President Faillieres.

The adverse vote of the chamber was due to the admission of General Colun, the minister of war, in the senate last Tuesday that the present organization of the army does not provide for a commander-in-chief in the time of war, the direction of operations in case of war being in the hands of a council of war, made up of the ministers of war and the generals of the army. This announcement by the minister came in the nature of a revelation to many parliamentarians.

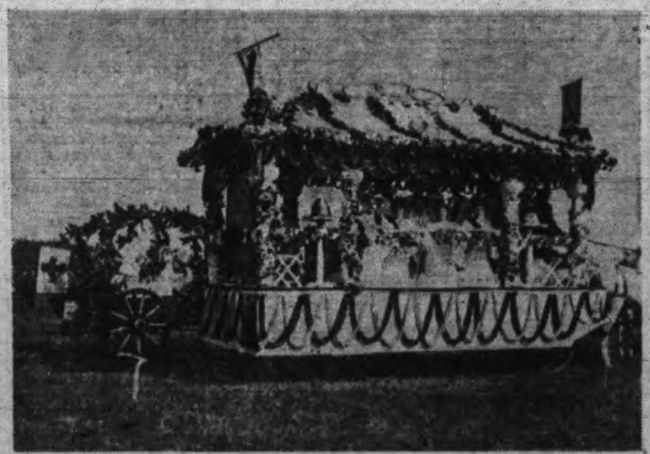

To-day in the chamber Deputy Hess interposed, the government on the subject and opposed the system of military control as outlined by General Colun. Thereupon the government asked for a vote of confidence and failed to obtain a majority.

The Monis cabinet was formed on March 2 last, following the resignation of the Briand ministry on February 27.

streets was discovered this morning. The big door of the safe had held against six or seven explosions of nitro-glycerine.

The attempted robbery was pulled off in the early hours of yesterday morning, the thieves taking advantage of the fact that yesterday was a bank holiday for the observance of Coronation Day festivities. Entrance to the bank vault was effected by tunneling through brick walls from the basement of the bank building.

Hodeidah, Arabia, June 15, via Aden, June 23.—Rebels in great force to-day surprised and cut up a Turkish column commanded by Mohammed Ali Pasha outside Gheasan, a town on the Red Sea, about 100 miles north of Hodeidah. A thousand Turkish soldiers were killed. Mohammed Ali Pasha is missing.

The fighting was so desperate and at such close quarters that wounded Turkish fugitives are suffering from sword wounds.

The survivors fled in disorder to Gheasan, pursued by the rebels. The Turkish gunboat Sutebhe, intending to shell the Arabs, shelled Gheasan instead, killing or wounding several hundred of the soldiers.

The rebels captured four big guns, two Maxim's, two thousand rifles and a quantity of ammunition, and ultimately retreated.

Gheasan, near which the rebellious Arabs routed the Turkish troops, is a report of the Turkish valley of Yemen in Southwestern Arabia. Yemen is a mountainous district whose people are engaged chiefly in stock raising and who are almost continuously in revolt against Turkish authority. Subsequently a relief force was sent out from Mecca, but which has not yet reported. At the same time Ismet Pasha, who had suppressed a revolt in Yemen, was sent to Asir. The most recent uprising in Yemen appears to have developed while a great share of

REGIMENTAL SPORTS
OF FIFTH TO-MORROW

Officers and Men Invite the Public to Visit Camp at Macaulay Plains

The annual regimental sports of the Fifth take place to-morrow afternoon at the camp, Macaulay Plains. Keen rivalry exists between the three companies, and the events provided are of such a character as to give opportunity for close finishes and exciting work.

Besides the ordinary type of races there will be Victoria Cross races, and relays. Competitive exhibitions of tent-pitching will also be given; tugs of war and other athletic "stunts" will take place as well. Prizes are being offered by many local merchants and others who are interested in the militia's welfare. A large number of invitations have been issued to citizens, and to "old boys" of the regiment.

The regiment band will be present and will render a good programme. During the afternoon the various messes of the camp will be at home to their friends. On Sunday morning the muster parade will be held and kit inspection will take place. The band will give an open-air concert in the afternoon.

To-night No. 2 company, under the command of Major Winsby, will hold its preliminary practice with the six-inch guns at Fort Macaulay, and will fire 100-pound service shells. Shortly before the sports to-morrow there will be a competitive practice at Fort Macaulay. No. 1 company will carry out its preliminary practice on Monday evening, beginning at half-past six. No. 1 is still carrying on night operations, firing by the aid of searchlights at moving targets at the entrance of the harbor.

John Drew To-night.

"Smith," in which John Drew will appear at the Victoria theatre to-night, is the fifth of W. Somerset Maugham's plays to be presented in this country.

Those already seen here are "Lady Frederick," made known by Ethel Barrymore; "Jack Straw" in which Mr. Drew appeared; "Mrs. Dot" being presented by Billie Burke and "Penelope" which was presented by Marie Tempest both in America and in England. Mr. Maugham has just made known in London a new comedy called "Loaves and Fishes," which will be produced in America by Charles Frohman as were the other pieces mentioned.

"Smith," has been universally conceded the best thing he has done yet. It is a play with a purpose, but absolutely free from sermonizing. It offers Mr. Drew the best part he has had in a long time.

The Old Homestead.

Those who love sweet music and those who enjoy the scent of new mown hay can have their several tastes gratified by a visit to "The Old Homestead." This charming play has been before the public for twenty-four years, and is now on its twenty-fifth annual tour. It is the same simple story of rural life in New England that it was away back in 1855 when it was first produced as a finished drama at the Boston theatre. And for eleven years prior to that Mr. Thompson had been presenting a play called "Joshua Whitcomb" in which he portrayed the sturdy old farmer, Uncle Josh. And even before that time Mr. Thompson had given for some years in the variety halls, a sketch, having Uncle Josh as its central figure.

So, taking it altogether, the character of the kindly New England farmer, Uncle Josh, has been before the theatregoing public for nearly forty years. The dramatic critic hesitates when he attempts to write anything new of "The Old Homestead." When a character has become so identified with the American stage as has Uncle Josh, by a life of nearly two score years, the pen may well falter in the effort to say anything new. And yet this much may be said: Denman Thompson, in presenting to the American stage a typical American character as it had never been presented before, endeared himself to the theatregoing public and made for himself a niche in the Temple of Fame as an actor and author. Wm. Lawrence is a worthy successor to Denman Thompson. "The Old Homestead" will be at the Victoria theatre on Monday, June 28.

May Robson.

May Robson will fill an engagement at the Victoria theatre on Tuesday, June 27, in "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary." From New York to California, Miss Robson has appeared in this funny comedy as "Aunt Mary" and won instant recognition. For over two years—with the exception of four weeks—this play has been in constant production. This does not include her appearances for eight weeks at Terry's theatre, London, where she was an emphatic success, both artistically and financially.

The press of London, noted for its formal criticisms, were quite enthusiastic over Miss Robson. Her creation of a distinct character was faultless. The mannerisms of an eccentric old lady into old fashioned ideas, expressed with irresistible unctious, coupled with an occasional sob as she bears with a riotous nephew whom she loves. Thus alternating with smiles and tears, while the audience are quick to discover the mother-love of the old lady, follow her with increasing interest. The comedy is immensely funny.

A farm laborer finding his master hanging from a beam in the barn, ran to the nearest station to inform the police. On being asked to inform the police, he did not cut the body down right away, replied, "Because he wasn't quite dead."

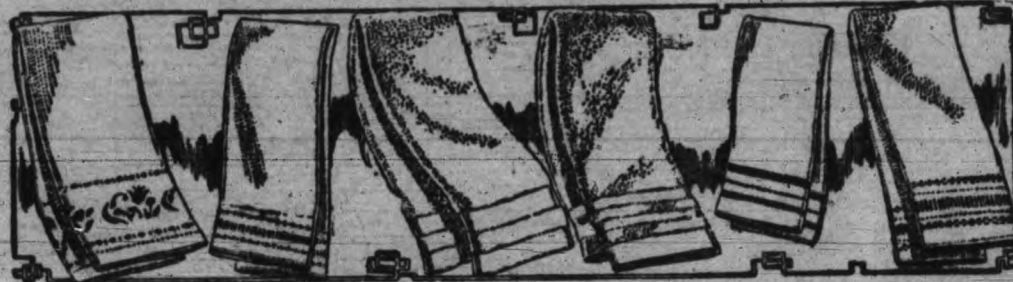

In 1904 there were only two motor cars in London. By 1909 they had grown to 1,300, and at the end of March this year the number was 7,100.

WELER BROS

SWEDISH PRISON SYSTEM.

Sweden is rapidly taking a front place among the nations of the world in the administration of its penal code. A subdivision is made of the prisoners as soon as they are entered. Those with families to support are placed in a special class and the earnings which are allowed prisoners go toward the keep of the wife and family of the prisoner incarcerated. As pointed out by the minister of justice of Sweden, there is a danger in the Swedish system, inasmuch as it has a tendency to encourage crime unless handled very discreetly, as many men would break into lives of crime merely in order to be relieved of the responsibility which wives and families place upon them. Every convict is compelled to work, but if sentenced merely for imprisonment, that is without labor, he may find work for himself. Until very recently the great mass of prisoners in Sweden worked under contractors who purchased their services at so much per head per day. This system was abandoned owing to the complaints of trade and labor unions and of the pressure brought by manufacturers through the medium of newspapers, and even through parliament itself on account of the cruelty of contractors to prisoners. Some two or three years ago, the prison system was reorganized and a bureau created for general prison administration. Instructions were issued that all departments of the state—

the army, the navy, the railway, the post office and telegraph—should purchase everything possible from the government prisons. This reorganization resulted in a revenue of over $150,000, above expenses, in the year 1909.

Children committed by the courts of Sweden are sent to special institutions with others of their own age, where special instruction is given, not only in mechanical arts, but in agricultural and educational subjects as well. No child is released from a Swedish institution, who is unable to read, write or do ordinary sums in arithmetic. The indeterminate plan is used and the child released under parole when he has satisfied the authorities of his reformation, with the possibility of his being returned to the institution if his record in school and subsequent life is not an ideal one.

The present system of prison administration in Sweden has resulted in the elimination of vagabondage among adults and juveniles so far as the cities of Sweden are concerned.—Edmonton Bulletin.
